TILDEN TAKES FIRST DAVIS CUP MATCH IN DEFEAT OF BOROATRA

Veteran American Master Of Tennis Gives His Team First Leg On Famous Cup; Wins Three In Four-Set Match

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, July 25. — William T. Tilden, II, that incomparable old master of the game of tennis, won the first point for America in the Davis Cup challenge round here today by defeating Jean Borotra of France in a sensational four-set match 2-6, 7-5, 6-4, 7-5.

Tilden's victory gives the United States one out of the three points necessary to regain the coveted Davis Cup which France won in 1927 and has held tenaciously ever since.

By a "marvelous combination of strategy and strength, the lanky American fulfilled all the brilliant promises made when he "came back" at Wimbledon earlier in the year to recapture the British championship which he lost in 1921 and struggled nine long hard years to regain.

A wet-and-dry referendum at Washington's backdoor is so unusual as to engage the attention of national political leaders of both parties.

There are five candidates for the Democratic congressional nomination in the eighth district of Virginia. Three of them are wet and two are dry.

The meeting places about Mt. Vernon, the ancestral home of the Washingtons and Arlington, Lee's old home, resound nightly to the battling. In the eighth district the Democratic nomination usually is equivalent to election. Hence the fever of the fight.

The principal contest is conceded to be between Thomas R. Keith, a Fairfax attorney, who has conducted a vigorous campaign in favor of state's rights in dealing with the prohibition problem; and his two dry opponents, state Senator Frank Ball of Arlington, and Judge Howard W. Smith, who resigned a seat on the circuit bench to make this race. The other candidates, Crandall Mackay and E. H. Dekarnette, both damp, are considered to have only outside chances.

The dries have always been supreme in the district. Virginia itself has been dry for many years, long before national prohibition. In 1925 the state bolted Al Smith in one of the most tempestuous campaigns in history, Hoover carrying it by about 30,000.

Yet in the current fight, which terminates in the primary August 5, Keith's friends claim he is going to be returned a victor ten days hence, and a number of non-partisan observers believe likewise. Keith has conducted a campaign not unlike that of Dwight Morrow in New Jersey, except that he has hammered on prohibition harder and more consistently.

Night after night he is telling dry Virginians: "I want prohibition returned to the states for control. Federal control has proved a failure. When Virginia was dry by state action fifteen years ago we had no trouble with the liquor problem. We had no bootleggers and no speakeasies. Now we are invaded with them, and you all know it."

Keith has the advantage of some considerable dry support, notwithstanding his own opposition to prohibition. He is being supported by Representative R. Walton Moore, the present congressman from the district, who has always been a dry. Moore retired voluntarily.

The Anti-Saloon League, however, has thrown its weight against him, and to the support of his dry rivals, particularly Ball.

SCHMELING SAVED

BERLIN, July 25.—Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight boxing champion, narrowly escaped injury or possible drowning today when his motor boat was swamped in Scharmutzel Lake, near Berlin.

Schmeling was thrown into the water, but was picked up by another motorboat whose occupants had witnessed the accident.

ANTI-MERGERISTS KEEP SPOTLIGHT ON PROXIES LEGALITY

Anti-Merger Group Attack Shares Of Stock Voted

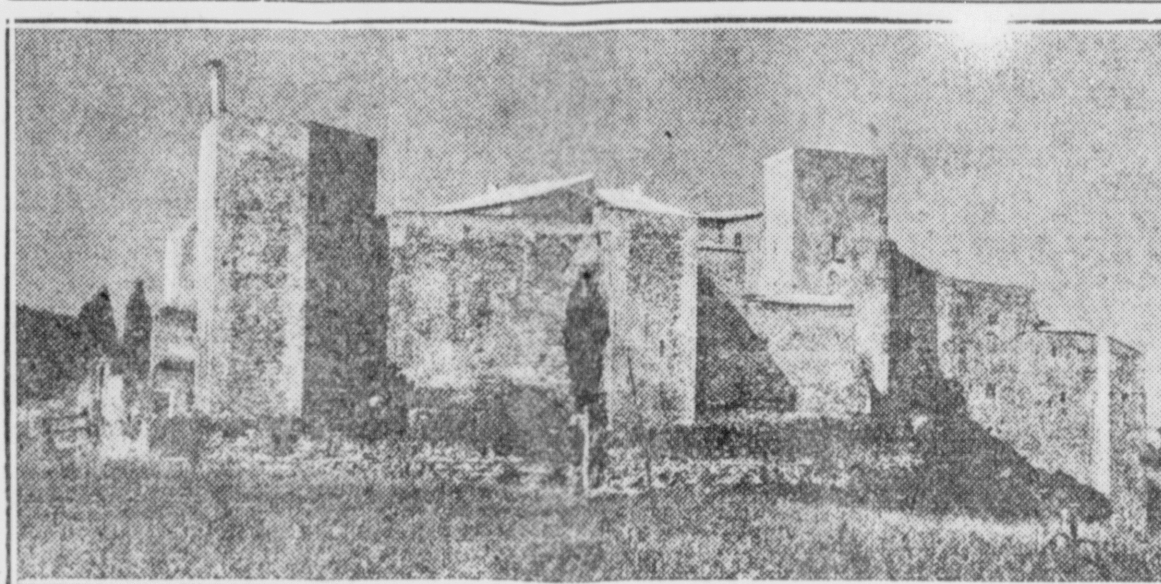

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 25.—Another week of trial of the injunction suit against the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. with Bethlehem Steel Corporation drew to a close today with the investigating spotlight of the anti-mergerists still focused on the legality of proxies voted for the merger at the stockholders' meeting April 8.

Two blocks of Sheet and Tube, totaling 83,058 shares, were attacked by anti-merger attorneys yesterday. One block consisted of 71,958 shares held in trust by the Dollar Savings and Trust Company, Youngstown. The other consisted of 12,000 shares held in the estate of the deceased members of the Stambaugh family.

Carl Ullman, assistant trustee of the Dollar Savings and Trust Company, testified from the witness stand that the board of directors of the bank was not given an opportunity to pass on the action of the executive committee which gave proxies on its held-in-trust Sheet and Tube stock to vote in favor of the merger.

Officers and directors of Sheet and Tube were members of the bank's executive committee. Previously, the bank's trust committee, of which Sheet and Tube directors were also members, had recommended that all stock be voted in accordance with the wishes of those persons connected with the trusts.

SCENES IN QUAKE'S PATH IN STRICKEN ITALY

As Italy buries her 1,783 dead and cares for her thousands of injured, rehabilitation work is already under way. Thousands of demolished buildings, great chasms in the earth, and chaotic conditions across southern Italy, tell a graphic story of the most disastrous earthquake since Messina was almost completely buried in 1908. Top photo shows the chateau of Charles I at Melfi, which is believed demolished, since almost the entire town was destroyed. Below is the famous Capuan gate at Naples and map, shaded area showing the extent of the earth tremor.

RALPH O. WEAD MADE CASHIER OF XENIA BANK

Ralph O. Wead, deputy auditor of state and former Greene County auditor, was elected cashier of the Xenia National Bank by the board of directors Thursday night.

He will take the position Monday, August 4, succeeding John A. Nisbet, who tendered his resignation to the directors Thursday night, terminating a connection with the bank of more than thirty years duration.

Mr. Nisbet's retirement, according to President George Little, is owing to ill health, from which he has been suffering for a year, and which has kept him away from the bank much of the time in the last few weeks. His desire to retire was expressed to the directors, for that cause, several months ago.

Mr. Nisbet entered the Xenia National as an employee after leaving the office of Greene County treasurer where he had served as treasurer and assistant treasurer. After filling the position of assistant cashier for a number of years, he was appointed cashier upon retirement from that position of the late A. S. Frazer, about fifteen years ago.

Mr. Wead, who was appointed an assistant auditor of state about a year ago by Auditor Joseph T. Tracy, resigned the state position several weeks ago in contemplation of the local appointment. He severs his connection with the state office the last of this month.

Mr. Wead was serving his third term as Greene County auditor when he resigned to take the state appointment July 1, 1929. He had previously been connected with the school system in Greene County for a number of years. He and his family will not return to Xenia to make their home until later, as Mrs. Wead is recovering at their residence in Columbus from effects of a recent surgical operation.

There will be no change in the bank personnel aside from the cashier. Foster B. Clemmer will continue as assistant cashier.

DETROIT POLICE RAID UNDERWORLD IN DEATH PROBE; NEW SHOOTING

Latest Killing Is Blamed On Jealousy; Hold Suspect

DETROIT, July 25. — An all-night "reign of terror" by police against the underworld in the search for the slayers of Jerry Buckley, radio announcer, today was climaxed by the arrest of 173 persons — 133 men and forty women — bringing the total number of arrests to more than 200.

State troopers and police swooped down on more than 100 blind pigs, gambling joints and vice resorts throughout the night. Warned by five raids in the early evening, many of the establishments nevertheless wrecked all means were found shut down by places with axes.

A furor of intense excitement swept the city this morning when it was reported that another gangster shooting had occurred. Abraham Brown, 34, was riddled with bullets as he sat in an automobile with his sweetheart. Police said later, however, that Brown was shot by a jealous suitor of his woman companion and that the killing was not connected with the series of gangster slaying, during which eleven men have been slain in three weeks.

A climax in the carnival of murders was reached early Wednesday when three gunmen shot and killed Buckley, radio announcer and political commentator of radio station WABC.

While state troops and police last night were raiding alleged speakeasies and underworld hangouts police secretly arrested John Klein, movie operator who sat in the lobby of the La Salle Hotel beside Buckley when he was slain.

EX-PREMIER MAY FACE BANISHMENT

KOVNO, July 25.—Dr. A. Voldemaras, former prime minister of Lithuania, was arrested today and faces banishment together with a number of his followers, according to reports here.

Dr. Voldemaras was taken into custody at his apartment in the Lithuanian State Bank building, his official headquarters during his term of office as premier. It was understood his arrest was due to his refusal to vacate the apartment.

Police threw his furniture into the street and padlocked the apartment. The statesman was reported to have been taken to an isolated place in the country by his captors.

Newspapers publishing accounts of the incident were suppressed.

SOVIETS SENTENCE FAMED ARISTOCRAT

MOSCOW, July 25.—The Soviet government today imposed a two-year term of imprisonment upon Maria Reyehinskaya, a member of the Russian aristocracy, after finding her guilty of spreading malicious rumors.

COMMISSION TAKES FIRST STEP TOWARD SOLUTION OF RATES

Instructs Manager To Open Negotiations; Two Plans Open

First step toward possible municipal ownership of a power and light plant, or opening of the power and light contract to competitive bidding, was taken by the city commission Thursday night when it authorized City Manager M. C. Smith to make preliminary investigations relative to the purchase of the distributing system of the Dayton Power and Light Co.

Negotiations to be entered into with the Dayton utility, owner of the poles and wires on Xenia streets, are for the purpose of determining whether or not such a purchase can be made, and upon what terms. Manager Smith is to report as to his findings at the next regular meeting of commission.

Commission went on record as declaring that it believes that "such purchase is necessary, in order that the city of Xenia may be placed in a position of absolute independence in the making of all future light and power contracts."

The action was taken in connection with a resolution filed with commission by the Xenia Retail Merchants Association two months ago, in which it expressed itself as favorable to the ownership by the city of the power and light transmission system.

A motion authorizing the preliminary investigation and opening of negotiations, was made by Mayor Jacob Kany and seconded

WITNESS WILL HELP MOONEY

CLEVELAND, O., July 25.—Declaring he "hated to see innocent men suffer longer," Adam Krumiec, 36, who claims to have been an eye witness to the 1916 preparedness day bomb outrage in San Francisco, today arose in defense of Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings, who are now serving life imprisonments for the bombing.

Breaking a silence of fourteen years, Krumiec, who is now a caretaker at the estate of Edmund S. Burke, Cleveland millionaire, today told his story of the bombing as he says he saw it while sitting across the street from where the disaster occurred.

Krumiec stated to International News Service that he believes the suitcase which contained the bomb, was placed on the street corner by three men who appeared to be Mexicans.

CHILD KILLED WHEN PHONE POLE FALLS

DAYTON, O., July 25.—Toby Snead, 7, is dead today and Frank Zimmerman 57, is in a dying condition as the result of having been struck by a falling telephone pole at West Carrollton, near here, where workmen were pulling down trees on the site of a new filling station. James Snead, 5, brother of Toby, was slightly injured.

The boys had been watching workmen when one of the falling trees struck a telephone pole which broke off and fell where the boys were standing.

Zimmerman was injured in an attempt to rescue the youths.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Treasury balance July 23: $201,551,755.17. Expenditures: $7,624,525.89. Customs receipts: $18,347,268.25.

REPORT 27 KILLED BY LATEST CATASTROPHE IN EARTHQUAKE WAKE

Disaster Spreads New Horror On Heels Of Devastating Temblors; Death Toll Of Quake Placed At 1,883.

ROME, July 25.—Spreading new horror and desolation beyond the wide area devastated by Italy's disastrous series of earthquakes, a roaring cyclone swept over the Piave district of the country today, adding at least twenty-seven more deaths to the appalling total of fatalities caused by the temblors which ruined scores of towns and villages and rendered hundreds of thousands homeless.

First reports from the area which was visited by the cyclone, gave the injured as at least 100, with ten villages hard hit.

While this new catastrophe was piling additional al tragedy on this quake-torn nation, Italian authorities modified their official toll of earthquake dead after a new check-up. They announced 1,883 were killed and approximately 10,000 injured.

Previous official figures placed the death list between 2,000 and 3,000.

Susegana reported five killed by the cyclone, Barco five, Nervesave five, Volpago four and Selva three and five in various other villages of the region visited by the storm.

A relief train with supplies and medical aid was dispatched from Treviso.

HUSTON TO RESIGN POST AS CHAIRMAN OF G. O. P. AUGUST 7

Leaders Debate On Successor; Senator Fess In Running

WASHINGTON, July 25.—All was quiet on the Republican front today after three months of internal seething that nearly broke into open eruption.

Claudius H. Huston, who might be called a stormy petrel, finally has consented to resign as chairman of the Republican national committee.

His retirement will take place officially on August 7, on which date, by his call, the executive committee of the national committee will meet to select his successor.

With Huston definitely on the skids at last, interest centered today on the party's choice for the new chairman. So far as could be learned, Senator Simon Fess, of Ohio, was slated for the job, with Robert H. Lucas, collector of internal revenue, in line for chairmanship of the executive committee and active control of the forthcoming congressional bi-elections.

This would parallel the situation in the Democratic party wherein John J. Raskob, retains the national chairmanship but Jonett Shouse handles Democratic fortunes as guiding genius of the minority party's executive committee.

Another name suggested for the G. O. P. chairmanship was Walter Head, the Omaha banker but Capitol Hill politicians were lining up behind Fess. The White House was inclined to let the men who are up for election make the final choice.

Definite announcement of Huston's intention of retiring came quite late last night after the elusive chairman had conferred with several party leaders and finally with President Hoover in person.

A statement was issued in Huston's behalf by James Francis Burke, general counsel of the Republican national committee, which said:

"I have just had a satisfactory conference with the president and we are in entire accord on our program. The president has approved my decision to call a meeting of the executive committee August 7, at which time I intend to submit my resignation as chairman of the Republican national committee."

Burke and National Treasurer J. R. Nutt had made a special trip to New York Wednesday to locate Huston and ascertain his frame of mind. Yesterday, when the chairman had returned to the capital, he met in the afternoon with Burke, Nutt, Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, the Republican floor leader, and secretary to the president, Walter Newton. Following dinner, Burke went to the White House and Huston followed him. The belated announcement of intention to resign climaxed this last meeting.

The decision of Huston to resign caused Republican leaders to breathe a sigh of relief. Ever since a senate committee first disclosed his lobbying and stock market activities, they have been fearful he would force an open fight within the party in his efforts to vindicate himself. As traditional Republicans, they have sought to avoid such a squabble.

Senatorial "young Turks" are keen on the suggestion that Senator Fess be made chairman and Lucas head of the executive committee. They regard the latter—a native of Kentucky—as a young and aggressive man who would be well able to take hold of the congressional campaigns just starting. They want Fess in the chairmanship because he is a simon pure Republican and has an unblemished record.

LONDON NAVAL BILL PASSED BY COMMONS AND REACHES LORDS

Treaty Before Japan Council Also For Ratification

LONDON, July 25.—The house of lords, following passage of the London naval treaty bill by the house of commons last night, today gave the first reading to the bill.

It is generally believed that the house of lords will give its consent to the pact after brief consideration.

The bill had previously passed through the committee stage after being handed to commission following a successful second reading.

The third reading followed a vote in the committee carrying clause 2 of the bill, 190 to 58. Clause 2 abrogates article 4 of the Washington treaty of 1922, which provided for trial and punishment of persons violating rules pertaining to protection of nationals at sea.

The treaty was accepted after desultory debate over the question of use of submarines in wartime.

TOKIO, July 25.—The London naval treaty today was submitted to the privy council for ratification by the emperor. Definite action on the pact is expected to be taken some time next week.

In anticipation of the government's action, the privy council has already considered the appointment of a committee which will be called upon to study the treaty and report to the full council in which the same manner as that in which the foreign relations committee of the American senate acts.

HEAVY FIRE LOSS

MARTINS FERRY, O., July 25.—Loss caused by a fire which destroyed the local plant of the Sulphur Co. here late yesterday, today was estimated at $50,000.

On her way to obtain the consent of her parents Miss Gyrtha Stourton, above, heiress of one of England's oldest families, insists she will marry Fioravanti Del'Agnesse, former Italian butler at the British embassy, at Washington, whether or not she receives it. Miss Stourton is a cousin of Sir Esme Howard, former British ambassador, and acted as social secretary to Lady Howard, who is understood to have disapproved of the match.

COMPANY L IS "HOT" COMPANY

Especially After Sunday's Train Ride Says Scribe;
Storm Cools Off Camp Perry

(Corporal Henry LeRoy Heaton, clerk of Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, has been appointed reporter for the company while it is in camp at Camp Perry, O. His first article on the experiences of the boys in camp follows. Editor.)

July 25, 1930.—They say that the first ten years are the hardest of all but really that ought to be put in a different way, shall we say that the first few days are the hardest—yes, I think that's much better. It also explains why you people in Xenia haven't heard from your boys before this. We all began working hard as soon as we got into Camp on Sunday evening and have been at it ever since with a few exceptions. The War Department must be out this year to see just how much can be given us to do. But does Company "L" care about a little thing like that—huh! We thrive on it; and in showing the other outfits just exactly how it should be done, and done right!

Was it warm back home on Sunday, folks. Perhaps you think that it was. Well, we're willing to bet Colonels to Corporals that it was warmer on the train, even warmer than you say that it was in Xenia. That's certainly pretty hot, don't you think? Yes indeed this was a hot company on Sunday.

But that's just what we're up here to prove to you, to General Henderson, to the United States of Ohio and to the United States Militia Bureau at Washington—That this is a HOT Company; an efficient and well trained body of men that is worthy of rank with the best of them. Yes, that is a pretty big order to fill but we think that with the present organization of officers and men our chances are a bit above par. Here's a few interesting reasons why we should be able to get the above rating:

We are here this year with a full quota of officers and men. The hard work that the officers have been doing to make this possible is shown by the fact that a SCORE of men have joined the ranks of this Company during the period from April first to the beginning of the present encampment. If you don't think that that's recruiting men in a big manner there isn't any use—!!

Sergeant Frame (top kick by the way) is all pepped up and is doing some wonderful work with the Company. Every morning in fact he blows his little whistle at 5:40 and then the sweet thing goes around to give all of his little darlings a good morning kiss. Isn't that sweet of him, though? Some of the boys have nightmares every night dreading the dawn!

We have with us at this time, and take pleasure in introducing to you, a young "Medic" Louie, who, by the way, does some practicing in that little Home Sweet Home—Xenia. First Lieutenant Best, meet some of the finest people in the world, the Xenia Public. Say hello to the people now, Doctor.

"HELLO!!!" That's fine, Doc. Now tell the people how you help to make this the best Company in the Brigade by keeping our temperatures at 98.6 degrees at all times.

Silence. Go ahead, tell them. Softer than the last attempt. Oh, well, he's a modest chap you know so I hardly expected him to say anything. However I want to say on behalf of the whole Company that we appreciate having him with us.

Now say "Ahh-h-h-h" for the people, doctor.

"Ahh-h-h-h—h—h—h." Stop! That's enough. Now you may go back to the boil you were opening.

This little fellow here is well known to all of you but he deserves an introduction never the less for he just now happens to be one of the camp's luminaries and may soon be a national champion of some note. You see Lieut. Perry Swindler is now leading scorer in the preliminaries and practice matches. Perry, meet the folks!

Make a little racket for the folks, Lieutenant. Bang! Bang-bang-bang!!!!

Thanks, Sir! Now here's a guy that I wouldn't trust from here to the flag pole and all you people go and give him your hard earned kale through the grilled window. But he is about the most worked man in the whole outfit.

Woof for the ladies and gentlemen, Lieutenant. "I'm getting too much work to do! Woof! Woof!"

Well we're sorry about that but there's nothing we can do about it. You are a hard worker we'll admit. That's the reason we're getting places, you're doing all you can to help out. As a Mess Officer you couldn't do better!

That reminds me dear people, there's another bloke around here who should be given a hand—old man Helmer, our cook. Is he efficient at his position? Whell!!! When there ain't no sody for the pancakes he does the next best thing and puts in baking powder.

Mess Sergeant Gill just came in to the tent here to ask Sgt. Frame where to get a whitewash brush. He must be going to paint the camp whitt. Has anyone got a brush to spare?

The popping of the guns is drifting in from the range where Company "L" is now on the firing line. We're all set to get a chest full of EXPERT medals to bring back to the home folks. By the time that you are reading this we will have had them.

Since the STORM night before last we have been having some swell weather here on the lake. When the boys went in last night for a swim they said that the water was pretty nice from the rains.

The fishing up here is very good this year too so Corporal Jones tells us that before the fortnite is up we will have some nice big tarpoons for mess some fine day. We wonder if he means it?

Lieutenant Best says that he has the best order in the Brigade and will duel at sunup tomorrow with anyone who as much as looks cross eyed when he says that. None take him up however as they all are agreed that his order is the best of all. Incidentally the little rover in question is Johnnie Frame of Goes Station, one of the first sergeants brood. Just like his old man, a tough one! Right now however he wants me to type him a picture card for "Mom and the Girls" back at Goes Station. Hope they can read it. You see, this typewriter is alright but there's a good breeze blowing and it wafts the paper around so much that it back types a great deal, and I make about ten mistakes a line. The City Editor will have a time deciphering this one!

We're keeping tab on you folks too. The GAZETTE is sending the Company ten papers every day so that we'll be able to talk on the latest when we get back to Xenia.

There's a great deal to write about but it hasn't happened yet. When it does I'll be right there so that I can tell you all about it straight from the ringside.

Yours until they can find a better company than Company "L".

Henry LeRoy Heaton.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

INTELLIGENT PRAYER—When ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking. Be not therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him.—Matthew 6:7, 8.

VISITING

Examination of the personal columns of almost any newspaper through the summer season shows many people reported as making some trip to visit friends. Or they are entertaining friends. But such entertainment is a far more hasty affair than it used to be.

Many of us can remember the maiden aunts and second cousins who used to descend on our homes and often stay for weeks. After a day or two all possible information had been exchanged, all possible questions of interest had been discussed, and there was nothing much to say. The departure of the long staying visitors was usually viewed with some equanimity.

There was something fine about the generous hospitality of those days. If you felt an urge to visit your uncles, aunts, and cousins, all you had to do was to write and invite yourself. The home was gladly thrown open, and you had a pleasant vacation without expense, for which you compensated them by equal willingness to receive them. It was a part of the simple living of those times, and it held families together, and took the place of the many sided diversions of these times.

Today the women folk view with some dread the advent of visitors. Their notions of homekeeping are more exacting. They feel they must go through a spurge of house cleaning before they are ready to receive the guests. Also they must prepare elaborate meals. So when we set out to visit our relatives, we are apt merely to stay for dinner. Or perhaps we call in for a half hour on our automobile trip, and breeze out of their town before we have hardly shaken hands with them.

We have gone to the other extreme, until people hardly know their relatives by sight, and have no comprehension of their lives and ideas. We have gained a lot in these rapid times, but we have lost some family affection and simplicity that was valuable.

EQUALIZING WEALTH

According to many philosophers, the world suffers from the great inequalities of wealth. It is felt to be wrong that while many people have vast wealth, far more than they know what to do with, yet there are masses of people who suffer from poverty.

One way to prevent inequalities of wealth, is to make everyone poor, as Russia has done successfully. If the principle is admitted, that each person should have what he produces, then there is bound to be great inequality, since some people, by their power to organize great business enterprises efficiently, can produce thousands as much as those who can only do one little thing, and many of whom can not do that one thing well.

There are three possible ways to equalize wealth in part. First, by heavy taxation. The effect of that is not always what is expected. If business is taxed, it often adds the taxes to the prices the people pay. Also many people avoid taxation legally by investing their money in bonds that are exempt by law from taxation. And curiously enough, many people who claim wealth should be equalized, yet resist propositions to tax all bonds. They like to encourage states and municipalities to borrow money and go in for business enterprises, which is made easier through selling tax exempt bonds.

Another way to equalize wealth is for the state to take over and operate industrial enterprises, so that people can not make money out of them. But the result of that is usually to make such industries subject to political influences which work against efficiency and production, and which therefore tend to make wages in those industries low.

Probably the best way to equalize wealth, is to encourage wealthy people to be generous with their money, in providing institutions by which people are helped over misfortune and enabled to abolish their own property.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

MCGUFFEY AGAIN

William H. McGuffey, of McGuffey's readers, continues to come into his own. He has won fame and deserves it. There was a famous group of literary Americans born between the years 1800 and 1809. This group included Emerson, Hawthorne, Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes and McGuffey. McGuffey was the only one not born in Boston. He was a great educator. And he was a character builder.

THE CUSTOMER

A successful department store has for its motto: "The customer is always right." This policy makes courtesy foremost. If you are working for any kind of firm or institution, remember you have no right to vent your personal spite. When your anger rises you have to remember that so long as you hold your job you must speak as the representative of your concern. You have no right to do harm to your employing company by involving it in a personal quarrel.

THE PERFECT WIFE

A writer refers to the wife of Admiral Byrd as "the perfect wife." Mrs. Byrd remains in the background and takes care of her four children. She will not pose for photographers, be interviewed, talk for the papers. That pleases almost everybody, but let us not make a general rule. A general rule never covers all cases properly. There are other women who do not have children, who do not remain in the background, who participate in public affairs, who do any number of important and creditable things, and yet are perfectly good wives. The "perfect wife" cannot be defined as one person. Home conditions differ. Temperaments vary. Self-expression requires various modes.

CAN IT BE TRUE?

Well, well, here is John S. Roth, tax commissioner of Middletown, Conn., who quits his job because he is overpaid. Says he is tired of drawing $3,500 a year for work that takes but six months out of the year. He says the position isn't worth that much and ought to be made a part-time job.

Sometimes one thinks that, after all, the government will make good and that an American citizen can be a pretty fine product of the human race.

SPARE TIME

The next thing is a nation-wide campaign for the wise use of leisure time. It is proposed at the convention of educators recently held in Ohio. It is the wise use of leisure that will make better citizenship and promote international good will. To know how to use spare time is as important as to know a trade. Great successes are usually the product of the "margin of effort." They are the product of wisely spent spare time.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to critical, medical or legal questions.

In how many fights did Jack Dempsey take part while champion, and what did he earn in each fight? He fought six times. His opponents and earnings were as follows: Mike, $55,000; Brennan, $108,000; Carpenter, $344,000; Firpo, $339,000; Gibbons, $250,000; Tunney, $717,000. These figures include his revenue of $94,000 from fight films.

The Presidential Oath

Was the oath of office altered in any manner for President Hoover? In administering the oath to President Hoover, the late chief justice of the supreme court, William Howard Taft, inadvertently changed the phrase "preserve, protect and defend the constitution" to "preserve, maintain and protect." He held this did not invalidate the oath of office.

Boone's Mother

Who was Daniel Boone's mother? Her name was Sarah Morgan, the daughter of a Pennsylvania Quaker.

Origin of Names

What are the origin and meanings of the name Bartholomew and Foster? Bartholomew is an old Scotch Highland clan name meaning "furrows", indicating the agricultural occupation of the clan. Foster is an occupational name dating from the feudal days and designated the servant who cared for the children of the lord of the manor.

River Lore

Where is "Slagle river" referred to in L. F. Brown's book, "Along a Trout Stream"? The gazetteers and atlases do not list a Slagle river. However, it may be a local name for the headwaters of the Pomme-de-terre river, in the Ozark, for there is a town of Slagle, Mo.

Just in Fun

In what localities is knife throwing practiced? Only on the stage, as far as specific places go. No race has developed knife throwing as either an amusement or a weapon of offense or defense, though individuals of many nationalities have become proficient in the "art".

Early Explorers

Where did the Norwegians first explore? No. The first man probably was the first explorer. The Phoenicians were the first explorers of whose work authentic records exist, though undoubtedly exploration went on before their voyages in the Mediterranean were undertaken. The Norwegians have become famous in modern times as Arctic explorers.

NEW YORK CITY, New York.—Remember a book called "Cora Potts," published about a year ago? It was the author's initial venture into fiction, and as Andy would say, "it made quite an imprint."

Cape and Smith publishers, announce a second volume by the same author, Ward Greene, to be published next month. The new book is called "Ride the Nightmare," and we'll all watch for it with interest. Brother Greene will have to go some to equal the virility of "Cora Potts."

ESSENCE OF VIOLETS

If Donald A. Laird, head of the Department of Psychology of Colgate University, who forecasts the early arrival of a "new era of sweet smells," will come to New York at his earliest convenience and begin operations here in our justly celebrated subway, several million nose-weary Gothamites will rise up and call him blessed.

A year or so ago some scientist tried to classify the odors in our underground Fireless Cooker. He captured and listed every known odor known to civilized man, except one.

The odor of sanctity was missing.

SAD MUSIC!

The Volstead Vigilantes have a new wrinkle. They pose as wandering musicians.

Two or more agents enter a suspected establishment and drink in a few minutes in saunters the "musician," totting a violin case. He walks up to the bar, opens the fiddle case and pulls forth an ebulliscope—an instrument for determining the alcoholic content of liquids. The "musician" sticks the doo-dad into the drink and if it carries out the conviction of the advance drinkers, arrests are made without further red tape.

A lot of folks who are not worried one way or the other about Prohibition, have the uncomfortable feeling that there's something radically wrong with a law that

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Keeping a quorum together has been the majority's principal worry all through the extra session's debate in the U. S. senate over the London naval treaty.

The majority started off with plenty of votes to ratify the treaty. They were sure enough of that.

To ratify a treaty takes two-thirds, but the two-thirds were available from the first—as soon as they could be cast. The problem was to arrive at a show-down. With a two-thirds majority, or more, in the treaty's favor, it may seem as if this ought to have been easy—but, under the senate rules, a lot of things look easy that are not.

Unless the senate decides otherwise, each senator is entitled, once he starts to talk, to discuss any pending measure for as long as he likes. This means that a very small group of them can stall off a vote on any given proposition almost indefinitely, by taking oratorical turns.

The house of representatives long ago put a time limit on speeches, but the house has no voice in ratifying treaties.

The senate also can adopt cloture and occasionally it does, but it is very unwilling to do so. It takes great pride in unlimited debate. In the matter of the naval treaty, for instance, many senators who were anxious, from the outset, to vote for the treaty itself, nevertheless would have voted against curbing their speechmaking concerning it.

The minority's initial strategy was to continue speaking until the weary majority dwindled below the required number to hold legal sessions at all.

That is to say, a mere two-thirds of the senators present in the chamber when a vote is taken do not necessarily count, for parliamentary purposes, as two-thirds. There must be two-thirds of a quorum—a quorum being a sufficient number to transact business legally.

In the senate's case a quorum consists of at least 49 senators. Let the attendance persistently fall below that minimum and the anti-treatyites plan was to say, "Evidently our quorum is gone for the summer; let us adjourn until late fall."

And time was what the anti-treatyites most urgently desired—to enable them to drum up popular sentiment against the naval bar-can't be enforced without all that hokey.

LINE WAS BUSY

I was reading the other day about an Australian philanthropist who walked into an institution and asked to see the head, "on private business."

"If you can't state your mission you can't go in," replied the secretary.

"Very well," replied the philanthropist, "if that's the way you treat poor people I may as well treat this up," and he tore up a check for $50,000 and handed the fragments to the secretary.

It recalled to mind an incident in the last mayoralty campaign in New York. A utility head wrote out a campaign check and told his secretary to hand it personally to the mayor. After several vain attempts to make contact with His Honor, the secretary so reported to his chief, and the check was thereupon scrapped.

gain. The pro-treaty leaders were equally anxious for early action.

Nevertheless, it is difficult to hold 49 senators in Washington with election campaigns going on in their home states—campaigns upon the result of which the political futures of quite a few of them depend. Senators so situated prefer to be on the job in their respective backwaters, spell-binding the voters.

Thus the extra session has been a period of decided stress and strain on Capitol Hill. Senatorial nerves have been badly frayed, and things have been said that did not sound much like "senatorial courtesy."

Clerk William Tyler Page of the house of representatives has watched the performance with a reminiscent smile.

Nearly all the representatives are back in their own congressional districts electioneering. The presidential call for the extra session did not catch them. This is an extra session of the senate alone. However, Clerk Page remains. He always is here between sessions, in his little office off statutory hall in the Capitol building.

Clerk Page can remember when the house of representatives had quorum fights that made the senate's latest one look like less than 20 cents.

Boy and man, William Tyler Page has been a congressional employee for nearly 50 years, and clerk of the representatives' chamber for a dozen of them.

He was journal clerk of the house in Speaker Tom Reed's day, when the quorum rumple reached its climax in the lower branch of the national legislature.

Members of the minority group in the house had a mean trick at that time. Sitting right in their seats, in plain sight of the speaker, they would refuse to answer the roll call, making the clerk's record indicate the lack of a quorum and tying up proceedings, despite the fact that they were there to vote.

It was a simple device he finally hit on to break this deadlock—nothing more complicated than instructing the clerk to count every member present who actually was present, whether or not he responded as his name was shouted.

Oh, yes, it was simple. So was Columbus' method of making his egg stand on end, and yet none of King Ferdinand's and Queen Isabella's courtiers happened to think of it previously.

What happened? Why, the minority representatives were fit to be tied, according to Clerk Page.

Nevertheless, Czar Reed got away with it. Having made it work once he did it again and many times again, watching his chance until he was certain enough members were on hand to furnish the desired quorum and then having the doors locked to keep them from escaping while they were being counted. They kicked the barriers down a time or two, but the clerk managed to chalk up the necessary number of them while they were doing it.

Sensors are agreed that such tumultuous doing would be impossible at their dignified end of the Capitol building.

Excess Fat Predisposes To Diabetes

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

"THROUGH THE LITTLE test you give in the pamphlet on 'Kidney and Bladder Disorders,' I found I had sugar in my urine. I went to a physician the very day I discovered it. For the more complete examination, he told me I had diabetes (and probably had had it for many years) to the extent that had I not discovered it, I would have been in grave danger of diabetic coma. I asked him what that meant, and he said unconsciousness. He put me on a diet and is giving me some kind of shots. I weighed 195 pounds (5 ft. 4 in. tall, 46 years old). Am now down to 180. Oh, how I wished I had reduced before this diabetes had developed."

"MRS. M."

The "shots" you are getting are evidently insulin injections. Mrs. M. These make up for the deficiency of insulin which your disordered pancreas is unable to manufacture now. (Insulin has to do with the normal utilization of sugar in the blood and tissues—the normal burning for heat and power, and the reorganization so it can be built up into fat.) With the artificial supply of insulin, a diabetic patient is able to eat a more nourishing diet, and so stands a much greater chance of recovery.

It is not believed that insulin actually cures the disease, but it has been noted that with the more nourishing diet, the pancreas does regenerate to some extent.

The relation of overweight to diabetes is not fully understood. All we know is that on an average, 75 per cent of the diabetics were overweight before the disease manifested itself—that is, in patients over 30. (This isn't true of the younger diabetics, although it has been noticed that many of them are overweight, too.) Joslin is fond of saying that his diabetics average 10 to the ton; that means they average 200 pounds apiece.

There is no difficulty in getting thin after diabetes manifests itself. I remember once, while I was talking to a couple, the woman asked me whether cake was fattening, and I of course told her that all food was fattening if it happened to be over the amount needed. Naturally, the richer the food (the higher in calories) the more fattening it was. Cake, being usually high in calories, would be classed as a fattening food. The man said, "That's funny, Doctor, the thing that will make me thinner than anything else is to eat cakes and other sweets!" The woman looked up in amazement, but of course, understood before he explained. He had diabetes, and overeating of the forbidden foods immediately made his condition worse.

The theories as to the cause of diabetes from overweight are first, the excess fat deposits in the pancreas cripple its function; second, the unbalanced diet cripples its function; third, it is a combination of these two, plus, perhaps, some damage caused from an infection which has been transported from carious teeth, bad tonsils, infected intestines or other spots in the body.

So, our little campaign against overweight is as much a campaign against diabetes as anything else, although there are myriads of other disturbances caused by the unbalanced diet and excess fat, wholly or in part—such as kidney, heart, arterial disease, arthritis, intestinal disturbances, high blood pressure, apoplexy, etc. It is even being discovered that more overweighters than underweighters get cancer.

We have a pamphlet of instructions on how to gain in lose, and a list of books on diabetes written by authorities for the layman. See column rules for obtaining these.

Editor's Note: Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a "fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following small charge to help cover cost of printing and handling: for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet, 10 cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, The Urinary System. Address: Dr. Peters Bureau, in care of this paper. Write legibly, and not over 200 words.

Suggests "Probation Courtship"

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 19 years old and this spring I was graduated from high school. A boy three years my senior has been my constant admirer ever since we were in grammar school together. I love him dearly and have reason to believe that he loves me, but at times he gets a bad case of "wanderlust," I call it.

"Two years ago he met a girl with whom he became infatuated, and gradually his attentions to me ceased. I held up my head and suffered in silence." In about two months he grew tired of her and came back to me. I was only too glad to take him back, so the next few months were happy ones for us.

"Six months ago the same thing happened again, only it was another girl. His affair with her lasted only a short time, then he came back to me. This time, however, I didn't take him back so eagerly. He declares that he loves me and is begging for another chance so that he may prove that 'he is a man,' as he terms it.

"What I am asking you is, shall I give him another chance, or shall I try to forget him? I love him, and to do that would be a difficult undertaking, but whatever you advise I shall endeavor to do.

"As you love him, why not put him on probation, Little Pal? It may be that he has learned through experience that you are the only girl for him, and he will not allow his attentions to again drift. You cannot quite trust him, however, after his slips, so if you tell him that you will go with him conditionally, and possibly not exclusively, until he has fully made up his mind that he wants you and you only, that is giving him a fair chance.

If he is one of those men who must have an occasional affair with other women, no matter how fondly he loves the one, it is for you to decide whether you prefer to suffer the pain of trying to forget him now, or whether you want him enough to put up with occasional lapses.

BLUE EYED NANCY: Aren't you making a mountain out of a molehill, Nancy? If the boy friend says he loves you, why not trust him and pay no attention to what people say about him and this other girl, or what she says? He surely would have married her some time during the past five years if he had really cared for her, and would ask her for dates if he cared so much for her society. Why spoil the happiness you might have by harping on the subject? He doesn't need you to die for him, as you appear willing to do, so just curb your jealousy and he probably will be willing to call it quits.

Change Diet, Remove Facial Veins

By GLADYS GLAD

"Dear Miss Glad: My skin is exceptionally clear and smooth, and free from blemishes. However, a lot of tiny veins are noticeable on my cheeks and nostrils. What can be done to eradicate these veins? Would ice packs do any good?"

MRS. THOMAS.

Ice packs would not in the least improve the unsightly veins on your cheeks and nostrils. A modification in your daily menu will help a great deal in eliminating them. Avoid foods which stimulate the blood supply too much, such as highly seasoned foods. Total abstinence from alcoholic drinks is also essential, as the alcohol stimulates the blood supply and will render the veins more prominent. However, these veins can only be removed by plastic surgery.

"Dear Miss Glad: The new sylvan-like Clara Bow has nothing on me! Thanks to the reducing instructions included in your booklet on 'The New Figure,' I have managed to lose twenty pounds. The only remaining sign of my former tubby state is a double chin. I presume that special exercises are necessary to remedy this condition. Can you give me any such exercises?"

"ANGELA T."

I am glad to hear of your success with my reducing course. I think you will find the following exercises very effective in eradicating your adamant double chin.

PINCH HITTING for Phil Frame BY R. A. H.

The indiscretions of a linotype operator made this column say the other day that Butch Bentley played with the old Nationals baseball team as a pitcher when every one who can remember the Nationals knows he was a catcher.

This column apologizes to Mr. Bentley for the tactless statement that he was a pitcher because everyone knows the old saying that "pitchers are peculiar." Of course old time baseball fans, who, according to the traditions of the game are supposed to be slightly odd. This is a natural superstition in a profession that thinks it is good luck for the first man up to strike out and that the teams in any given league will finish the season the same way they stood on July 4.

The column also confesses an error in having the name of Patzy McNelis wrong in the original account of the Nationals and takes this occasion to remark that Fred Fisher, the well-known diagnostician on rib roasts and hamburgers, was also a stellar member of the original Nationals back in the days when.

The fad of "motorboat golf" which is the appellation given the game of miniature golf by the vaudeville performers, continues to grow as is evidenced by the fact that a course is being constructed at Canton.

Clement Henrie, who designed and built the course opened at the Henri Bros. at Fritz Haller's White House barbeque, is branching out as a miniature golf course architect or engineer since he is installing the course there for Osborn interests.

The Henri boys have changed the hazards on the seventeenth hole at their course, by constructing another tunnel shot for that green, covering the hazard.

The shot is a bank and the change makes that green a little harder but par for the hole will not be changed.

The tournaments being conducted this week both for youngsters and adults, are growing with interest. The Henri boys announce that the prizes will be given away to winners in both tournaments about 10 o'clock Saturday night.

"Doc" Lones, one of Xenia Central High's former renowned athletes, was in Xenia briefly Thursday morning, passing through here on a business trip.

"Doc" is now married and lives in Kenton, but his home was originally in Ada whence he came here to go to school and help Jerry Katherman establish a basketball at the Xenia school.

Unfortunately he injured his knee in the first football game of the season, at Washington C. H. and was handicapped the rest of the football season in which the team won the district Class B title. He again performed ably in basketball until an attack of pneumonia laid him low. He still wears a brace on his trick knee but is otherwise a completely healthy animal, weighing about 185 pounds on the hoof.

The release of Phil Corr by the Downtown Country Club and his subsequent signing by the Lang Chevrolet, with the approval of the Softball Commission, was considerably of a surprise in local softball circles.

It seems that Corr was dissatisfied with his role as catcher for the Downtowners because he felt he was not permitted to play frequently enough, and that he sought his release and asked for the opportunity to play with the Langs, who didn't hesitate about signing him up.

The situation is made all the more interesting because the Downtowners are in second place in the National League and Corr shifts allegiance to the league leaders although still a member of the Downtown Country Club which sponsors the team playing under that name. He will probably appear against his old mates next Tuesday when the Langs and Downtowners meet for a game that will have an important bearing on the league race.

Local marksmen are oiling up their pump guns for the annual Grand American Handicap tournament, premier trapshooting event of the North American continent, which will be staged at Vandalia, north of Dayton, the week of August 18 to 23. Shooters from all parts of the United States, Panama Canal Zone and Canada will probably be on hand. Bruce Lovick, local crack shot, Os Swartz, Harry Spahr, Dick Dennison of Yellow Springs are usually among the contestants.

Miniature golf and softball are running a popularity race, it would seem. Three softball teams are now functioning at Jamestown and the boys at Mt. Tabor are attempting to organize one now.

WOMAN STARVES
CHICAGO, July 25.—Police today were investigating the death of Miss Dix Schirmer, 67, who succumbed last night to starvation, according to physicians.

She had wasted away to forty-eight pounds and so weak she was unable to talk when she was taken to Belmont Hospital.

Two relatives with whom she had lived were taken into custody.

COPE FAMILY CONTRIBUTES FATHER AND THREE SONS TO GRAHAMS SOFTBALL TEAM

If your family gets a little fed up on hearing you talk about the local softball races, consider the situation in the Cope family where three members are playing with the Graham Paints and a fourth is a battery for the team.

Carl "Coxie" Cope, well known Xenian, is thumbing his nose at Father Time and laughing at his own gray hair, while he cavorts in the outfield for the painters while two sons Lawrence and Willie are members of the same team.

The fourth candidate in this family of softball players is none other than Eugene, aged 12, who acts as battery for the club and will give you an argument any time about the merits of his team.

The situation of father and sons playing on the same team, is unique locally, and probably anywhere else. "Coxie," despite the gray hairs that are now silvering his once-raven locks, appears as agile and nimble on the diamond as any of his kids. He usually plays in the outfield.

Lawrence, who is married, plays shortstop for the Graham team, hits ably and is a demon on the bases, where he runs wild. Willie plays in the outfield with his dad, and is also a capable fielder and a reliable hitter.

Despite their performance on the same team, there is no professional jealousy although Eugene shows no favorites in advising all three to knock the cover off the ball whenever they go to bat.

AMERICAN LOOP RACE IS AGAIN TIED; KI-RO DEFEATS CADDIES

Leadership of the American League was again badly knotted up today after the Ki-Ro team, dislodged from first position by the Krippendorff-Dillon Co. last Monday, defeated the Caddies 13 to 6 at Cox Field Thursday evening to again tie the up the shoemakers.

Hard and long hitting on the part of the Ki-Ro team won the contest while Russ Kimber kept the enemy from threatening seriously, but it was a rally in the eighth stanza that put the lunch club over the top. Falling on the slants of Hornick in the inning, the winners pointed out four hits and took advantage of many errors to gather in seven runs, and tie the contest.

The Caddies scored once on a single and a triple in the second and took an impressive lead with three runs in the third scored on an error, a base on balls, a double by Custer and a single by Hornick. They were then held scoreless until the ninth when Custer and Tubey singled to produce one run, that fell far short.

The Ki-Ro team scored in the first on a pair of wobbles and a single and manufactured three runs in the third on three hits, a walk and an error. They forged again in the seventh when Kimber hit a home run after Moll singled and then the big ninth put the game away.

There will be a double header at the yard Friday evening when the Geysers meet the Carroll-Blenders in a National League game and the Langs play the Reeder Printers of Washington in a non-league finale. Lineups:

SECOND MINIATURE GOLF COURSE OPENS SATURDAY EVENING

Xenia's second miniature golf course will be opened Saturday night.

This was the announcement Friday of Robert Bell, who has taken over operation of the new course construction of which is now being finished on the Springfield Pike just north of the Xenia Country Club entrance.

The course will be "the most beautiful miniature course in Ohio," according to Bell, who has patterned it after a course he operates in Cincinnati. The new midsize links will be known as the "Bobby Lou" and will contain a number of interesting hazards that will heighten the interest of players.

The course is south of the McCoy Bros. garage and the owners have made arrangements for parking space on the McCoy property and in a lot adjoining the garage on the north.

THREE EXECUTED ON MURDER CHARGE
KANSAS CITY, July 25.—Maintaining their innocence to the last and showing no outward signs of emotion, three men paid with their lives on the gallows here today for the slaying of James H. (Happy) Smith, Kansas City policeman.

The three men, Tony Lollypopp, Manjaracina, 29, John Messino, 29, and Carl Nasello, 22, were hanged simultaneously, dropping through the same gallows trap.

VISIT EISTEDDFOD
NEW YORK, July 25.—More than 200 Americans from all parts of the country will sail today for Wales to attend the Royal National Eisteddfod, famous singing festival which dates from ancient times. In the party will be John Williams of Oakland, Calif., a member of the board of meditation of the labor department.

WOMAN STARVES
CHICAGO, July 25.—Police today were investigating the death of Miss Dix Schirmer, 67, who succumbed last night to starvation, according to physicians.

She had wasted away to forty-eight pounds and so weak she was unable to talk when she was taken to Belmont Hospital.

Two relatives with whom she had lived were taken into custody.

JOHNNY CURTIN TO TANGLE WITH BILLY PETROLA MONDAY
Johnny Curtin, local lightweight sensation, will get his big opportunity Monday night, July 28 at the Forest Park arena, when he takes the ring against Billy Petrola, Fargo, S. D. lightweight in a ten round bout.

Petrola, termed the Fargo express by boxing critics throughout the country, is rated the third best lightweight in the country and holds wins over Jack Kid Berg, great English lightweight via the kayo route and has defeated Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion in a non-title bout. Numbered among Petrola's victims will be found the names of Ray Miller, Tommy Grogan, Stanley Loazya, Joe Glick, Billy Wallace and others too numerous to mention. At present London, England promoters are angling for a return bout between Petrola and Berg. If Johnny can earn a win over the great Petrola, he will be sitting right at the top. The Dayton lightweight is training as never before and will be prepared to make the best of his chance at fame. In another ten rounder on the same card Pedlar Palmer, colored knockout artist will get his chance also against Rosy Rosales, Indian lightweight. Rosales is rated right at the top holding a one round victory over Joe Sekyra and a ten round decision over Larry Johnson, great colored fighter, having Johnson on the floor for counts nine times. The Indian is no stranger to local fans as great bouts with Tiger Roy Williams were fought in Memorial Hall. Rosales proved himself a great puncher and a willing mixer in each of his local appearances.

LANGS AID BATTING AVERAGES IN HEAVY HITTING VICTORY

Dayton Yellow Cabs Humiliated 30 To 5 Here Thursday

The Lang Chevrolets enjoyed a field day at Washington Park Thursday evening at the expense of the Dayton Yellow Cabs, defeating the visitors by the overwhelming score of 30 to 5.

Winder, the visiting pitcher, was no puzzle to the heavy-hitting Langs, who hit high, wide and handsome. His delivery to accumulate runs in every inning but the sixth when they rested after batting completely around in the fifth.

The visitors could do nothing with the offerings of Hurley and Williams, and did not score until the sixth, when they broke the ice with a single run. The Langs hit safely twenty-six times, many of them being extra-base blows.

FAST HORSEFLESH ENTERED IN GREENE COUNTY FAIR EVENTS

A number of horses that will start in the trotting events at the Greene County fair race August 6, 7, 8, gave good accounts of themselves on the grand circuit track at North Randall, in its successful closing week, and at the Sidney and Wapakoneta meetings, earlier this month.

At North Randall, Legality, a bay colt by Lawful, and Hugh M. Napoleon, both from the stables of H. M. Marshall, at Urbana, finished in the money in the three-year-old trot and three-year-old pace, respectively. Legality was third in the three-year-old trot for a purse of $2,000, making his best time in the second heat, which was won in 2:06. Hugh M. Napoleon finished fifth in the pace but made his best time in the second heat when he finished in third place. The heat was won in 2:08 1-2.

General Walker, also from the Marshall stables, entered here in the 2:18 trot, won the second and last heats of a 2:17 trot after finishing the first heat in tenth place. He made the best time of the race in the second heat, 2:05 1-2. Grattan McKinney, who will start here in the 2:18 pace, took second money in the Buckeye 2:18 pace at the North Randall track, when the mile was stepped in 2:04 3-4 in the first heat by the winner of first money. He belongs to the Marshall string.

Another Marshall entry for the 2:18 trot, Shenandoah, finished first in the second heat of the trot claiming at North Randall, making the best time of the race 2:09. Marshall horses kept to the front at North Randall. Betty Symbol, who is entered in the 2:18 pace, here, was second in the third heat of the 2:16 pace, finishing the race third. Prince R. Dillon (Parshall) finished third in the last heat of the 2:23 pace, and winning third place here in the 2:18 pace. He will start in the 2:18 pace.

Rose McGregor won the three-year-old trot at Wapakoneta in straight heats making time of 2:14 1-4 on the last heat. Miss Mary, also starting here, was third in the race and finished the second heat in second place.

Ray Henley, the Hagler colt, trained at the local track, won the three-year-old pace in straight heats with time of 2:10 3-4, in the third heat, at his first racing meet appearance. Rosie Princeton finished second in this race and Tramping Napoleon, third. In the 2:20 pace Peter Nutonia won the third heat in 2:14 while Mt. Lorain (Hagler) finished the second heat in third place and was given third place in the race. In the same race Red Azoff finished fifth.

Camilla Hedgewood finished first in the third heat of the 2:16 pace which went four heats making the best time of the race 2:09 1-2. Cora Potemkin won the 2:24 trot taking the two last heats and making 2:11 1-4 in the third. The 2:24 pace, a straight heat race, was won by Czar Model, who made the best time in the first heat 2:10 1-2. This horse also gave a good account of himself at the Sidney meeting last week finishing the race in second place after winning the third heat.

Ray Henley, the Hagler colt, who won the three-year-old and under pace in straight heats after having performed in the same manner at the Wapakoneta meeting, is expected to give even a better account of himself on the local track where he was trained by Jo Hagler, son of his owner, G. M. Hagler, Rosie Pemberton who will also start in Xenia finished second in this race in straight heats. Cora Potemkin was third in the 2:24 trot and in the 2:19 trot, eliminating heats Clara S. finished first taking the third heat and finishing in second place in the second after being eliminated in the first.

Secretary J. Robert Bryson of the Greene County fair board, is expecting a good percentage of the ninety-three horses entered in the four stake events of the fair to start here. There are two stake events for Wednesday, August 6, the opening of the three days meeting, the 2:18 pace purse $600 and the three year old pace for a $600 purse.

The three-year-old trot will be a stake event of Thursday for $500 purse and Lula Faye dining room cup winner. The 2:18 trotting stake will be an event of Friday the closing day.

The following are entries in the four stake events at the Greene County fair races August 6, 7, and 8.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

INTELLIGENT PRAYER—When ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking. Be not therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him.—Matthew 6:7, 8.

VISITING

Examination of the personal columns of almost any newspaper through the summer season shows many people reported as making some trip to visit friends. Or they are entertaining friends. But such entertainment is a far more hasty affair than it used to be.

Many of us can remember the maiden aunts and second cousins who used to descend on our homes and often stay for weeks. After a day or two all possible information had been exchanged, all possible questions of interest had been discussed, and there was nothing much to say. The departure of the long staying visitors was usually viewed with some equanimity.

There was something fine about the generous hospitality of those days. If you felt an urge to visit your uncles, aunts, and cousins, all you had to do was to write and invite yourself. The home was gladly thrown open, and you had a pleasant vacation without expense, for which you compensated them by equal willingness to receive them. It was a part of the simple living of those times, and it held families together, and took the place of the many sided diversions of these times.

Today the women folk view with some dread the advent of visitors. Their notions of housekeeping are more exacting. They feel they must go through a spurge of house cleaning before they are ready to receive the guests. Also they must prepare elaborate meals. So when we set out to visit our relatives, we are apt merely to stay for dinner. Or perhaps we call in for a half hour on our automobile trip, and breeze out of their town before we have hardly shaken hands with them.

We have gone to the other extreme, until people hardly know their relatives by sight, and have no comprehension of their lives and ideas. We have gained a lot in these rapid times, but we have lost some family affection and simplicity that was valuable.

EQUALIZING WEALTH

According to many philosophers, the world suffers from the great inequalities of wealth. It is felt to be wrong that while many people have vast wealth, far more than they know what to do with, yet there are masses of people who suffer from poverty.

One way to prevent inequalities of wealth, is to make everyone poor, as Russia has done successfully. If the principle is admitted, that each person should have what he produces, then there is bound to be great inequality, since some people, by their power to organize great business enterprises efficiently, can produce thousands as much as those who can only do one little thing, and many of whom can not do that one thing well.

There are three possible ways to equalize wealth in part. First, by heavy taxation. The effect of that is not always what is expected. If business is taxed, it often adds the taxes to the prices the people pay. Also many people avoid taxation legally by investing their money in lands that are exempt by law from taxation. And curiously enough, many people who claim wealth should be equalized, yet resist proposals to tax all bonds. They like to encourage states and municipalities to borrow money and go in for business enterprises, which is made easier through selling tax exempt bonds.

Another way to equalize wealth is for the state to take over and operate industrial enterprises, so that people can not make money out of them. But the result of that is usually to make such industries subject to political influences which work against efficiency and production, and which therefore tend to make wages in those industries low.

Probably the best way to equalize wealth, is to encourage wealthy people to be generous with their money, in providing institutions by which people are helped over misfortune and enabled to abolish their own property.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

McGUFFEY AGAIN

William H. McGuffey, of McGuffey's readers, continues to come into his own. He has won fame and deserves it. There was a famous group of literary Americans born between the years 1800 and 1809. This group included Emerson, Hawthorne, Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes and McGuffey. McGuffey was the only one not born in Boston. He was a great educator. And he was a character builder.

THE CUSTOMER

A successful department store has for its motto: "The customer is always right." This policy makes courtesy foremost. If you are working for any kind of firm or institution, remember you have no right to vent your personal spite. When your anger rises you have to remember that so long as you hold your job you must speak as the representative of your concern. You have no right to do harm to your employing company by involving it in a personal quarrel.

THE PERFECT WIFE

A writer refers to the wife of Admiral Byrd as "the perfect wife." Mrs. Byrd remains in the background and takes care of her four children. She will not pose for photographers, be interviewed, talk for the papers. That pleases almost everybody, but let us not make a general rule. A general rule never covers all cases properly. There are other women who do not have children, who do not remain in the background, who participate in public affairs, who do any number of important and creditable things, and yet are perfectly good wives. The "perfect wife" cannot be defined as one person. Home conditions differ. Temperaments vary. Self-expression requires various modes.

CAN IT BE TRUE?

Well, well, here is John S. Roth, tax commissioner of Middletown, Conn., who quits his job because he is overpaid. Says he is tired of drawing $3,500 a year for work that takes but six months out of the year. He says the position isn't worth that much and ought to be made a part-time job.

Sometimes one thinks that, after all, the government will make good and that an American citizen can be a pretty fine product of the human race.

SPARE TIME

The next thing is a nation-wide campaign for the wise use of leisure time. It is proposed at the convention of educators recently held in Ohio. It is the wise use of leisure that will make better citizenship and promote international good will. To know how to use spare time is as important as to know a trade. Great successes are usually the product of the "margin of effort." They are the product of wisely spent spare time.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

In how many fights did Jack Dempsey take part while champion, and what did he earn in each fight?

He fought six times. His opponents and earnings were as follows: Miske, $55,000; Brennan, $108,000; Carpenter, $344,000; Firpo, $539,000; Gibbons, $250,000; Tunney, $717,000. These figures include his revenue of $94,000 from fight films.

The Presidential Oath

Was the oath of office altered in any manner for President Hoover? In indicating the oath to President Hoover, the late chief justice of the supreme court, William Howard Taft, inadvertently changed the phrase "preserve, protect and defend the constitution" to "preserve, maintain and protect." He held this did not invalidate the oath of office.

Boone's Mother

Who was Daniel Boone's mother? Her name was Sarah Morgan, the daughter of a Pennsylvania Quaker.

Origin of Names

What are the origin and meanings of the name Bartholomew and Foster?

Bartholomew is an old Scotch Highland clan name meaning "furrows", indicating the agricultural occupation of the clan. Foster is an occupational name dating from the feudal days and designated the servant who cared for the children of the lord of the manor.

River Lore

Where is "Slagle river" referred to in L. F. Brown's book, "Along a Trout Stream"?

The gazetteers and almanacs do not list a Slagle river. However, it may be a local name for the headwaters of the Pomme-de-terre river, in the Ozark, for there is a town of Slagle, Mo.

Just in Fun

In what localities is knife throwing practiced?

Only on the stage, as far as specific places go. No one has developed knife throwing as either an amusement or a weapon of offense or defense, though individuals of many nationalities have become proficient in the "art".

Early Explorers

Were the Norwegians the first explorers?

No. The first man probably was the first explorer. The Phoenicians were the first explorers of whose work authentic records exist, though undoubtedly exploration went on before their voyages in the Mediterranean were undertaken. The Norwegians have become famous in modern times as Arctic explorers.

MORE LIT'RY STUFF

NEW YORK CITY, New York.—Remember a book called "Cora Poits" published about a year ago? It was the author's initial venture into fiction, and as Andy would say, "it made quite an imprint."

Cape and Smith, publishers, announce a second volume by the same author, Ward Greene, to be published next month. The new book is called "Ride the Nightmare," and we'll all watch for it with interest. Brother Greene will have to go some to equal the virility of "Cora Poits."

ESSENCE OF VIOLETS

If Donald A. Laird, head of the Department of Psychology of Colgate University, who forecasts the early arrival of a "new era of sweet smells," will come to New York at his earliest convenience and begin operations here in our justly celebrated subway, several million nose-weary Gothamites will rise up and call him blessed.

A year or so ago some scientist tried to classify the odors in our underground Fireless Cooker. He captured and listed every known odor known to civilized man, except one.

The odor of sanctity was missing.

SAD MUSIC!

The Volstead Vigilantes have a new wrinkle. They pose as wandering musicians.

Two or more agents enter a suspected establishment and drink. In a few minutes in saunters the "musician," totting a violin case. He walks up to the bar, opens the fiddle case and pulls forth an auto-lit flashlight—an instrument for determining the alcoholic content of liquids. The "musician" sticks the doo-dad into the drink and if it carries out the conviction of the advance drinkers, arrests are made without further red tape.

A lot of folks who are not worried one way or the other about Prohibition, have the uncomfortable feeling that there's something radically wrong with a law that

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Keeping a quorum together has been the majority's principal worry all through the extra session's debate in the U. S. senate over the London naval treaty.

The majority started off with plenty of votes to ratify the treaty. They were sure enough of that.

To ratify a treaty takes two-thirds, but the two-thirds were available from the first—as soon as they could be cast. The problem was to arrive at a show-down. With a two-thirds majority, or more, in the treaty's favor, it may seem as if this ought to have been easy—but under the senate rules, a lot of things look easy that are not.

Unless the senate decides otherwise, each senator is entitled, once he starts to talk, to discuss any pending measure for as long as he likes. This means that a very small group of them can stall off a vote on any given proposition almost indefinitely, by taking oratorical turns.

The house of representatives long ago put a time limit on speeches, but the house has no voice in ratifying treaties.

The senate also can adopt closure and occasionally it does, but it is very unwilling to do so. It takes great pride in unlimited debate. In the matter of the naval treaty, for instance, many senators who were anxious from the outset to vote for the treaty itself, nevertheless would have voted against curtailing speechmaking concerning it.

The minority's initial strategy was to continue speaking until the weary majority dwindled below the required number to hold legal sessions at all.

That is to say, a mere two-thirds of the senators present in the chamber when a vote is taken do not necessarily count, for parliamentary purposes, as two-thirds. There must be two-thirds of a quorum—a quorum being a sufficient number to transact business legally. In the senate's case a quorum consists of at least 49 senators.

Let the attendance persistently fall below that minimum, and the anti-treatyites' plan was to say, "Evidently our quorum is gone for the summer; let us adjourn until late fall."

And time was what the anti-treatyites most urgently desired—to enable them to drum up popular sentiment against the naval pact.

can't be enforced without all that hoop.

LINE WAS BUSY

I was reading the other day about an Australian philanthropist who walked into an institution and asked to see the head, "on private business."

"If you can't state your mission you can't go in," replied the secretary.

"Very well," replied the philanthropist, "if that's the way you treat poor people I may as well tear this up," and he tore up a check for $50,000 and handed the fragments to the secretary.

It recalled to mind an incident in the last mayoralty campaign in New York. A utility head wrote out a campaign check and told his secretary to hand it personally to the mayor. After several vain attempts to make contact with His Honor, the secretary so reported to his chief, and the check was thereupon scrapped.

gain. The pro-treaty leaders were equally anxious for early action.

Nevertheless, it is difficult to hold 49 senators in Washington with election campaigns going on in their home states—campaigns upon the result of which the political futures of quite a few of them depend. Senators so situated prefer to be on the job in their respective bailiwicks, spell-binding the voters.

Thus the extra session has been a period of decided stress and strain on Capitol Hill. Senatorial nerves have been badly frayed, and things have been said that did not sound much like "senatorial courtesy."

Clerk William Tyler Page of the house of representatives has watched the performance with a reminiscent smile.

Nearly all the representatives are back in their own congressional districts electioneering. The presidential call for the extra session did not catch them. This is an extra session of the senate alone. However, Clerk Page remains. He also was journal clerk of the house in Speaker Tom Reed's day, when the quorum rumpus reached its climax in the lower branch of the national legislature.

Members of the minority group in the house had a mean trick at that time. Sitting right in their seats, in plain sight of the speaker, they would refuse to answer the roll call, making the clerk's record indicate the lack of a quorum and tying up proceedings, despite the fact that Speaker Tom knew they were there to vote if he could make them say so.

It was a simple device he finally hit on to break this deadlock—nothing more complicated than instructing the clerk to count every member present who actually was present, whether or not he responded as his name was shouted.

Oh, yes, it was simple. So was Columbus' method of making the egg stand on end, and yet none of King Ferdinand's and Queen Isabella's courtiers happened to think of it previously.

What happened?

Why, the minority representatives were fit to be tied, according to Clerk Page.

Nevertheless, Czar Reed got away with it. Having made it work once he did it again and many times again, watching his chance until he was certain enough members were on hand to furnish the desired quorum and then having the doors locked to keep them from escaping while they were being counted. They kicked the barrier down a time or two, but the clerk managed to chalk up the necessary number of them while they were doing it.

Senators are agreed that such tumultuous doing would be impossible at their dignified end of the Capitol building.

"That's the second time you have mentioned the Queen's first flight," remarked Peter. "Just what do you mean?"

"I'll have to begin at the beginning and tell you a story," said Ant. "I had forgotten that you didn't know the simplest facts about Ant life. For instance, you didn't know all Ants are divided into three sorts of folks, did you?" Peter shook his head, and Ant continued. "There are the males, the females and the neuters. By the way, you're a male, aren't you?"

"I should say I am, and proud of it!" exclaimed Peter. Ant snickered. "If you were an Ant you wouldn't brag about that," said he. "In Ant Hill Town a male is a good-for-nothing. He lazes all the day through, basks in the sun and comes to a sad end that serves him perfectly right, since he has done nothing at all to help make the world better and brighter. A shirk that's all Mr. Ant is, and you'll find few of the rest of us to say a good word for him!"

Excess Fat Predisposes To Diabetes

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

"THROUGH THE LITTLE test you give in the pamphlet on 'Kidney and Bladder Disorders,' I found I had sugar in my urine. I went to a physician the very day I discovered it for a more complete examination. He told me I had diabetes (and probably had had it for many years) to the extent that had I not discovered it, I would have been in grave danger of diabetic coma. I asked him what that meant, and he said unconsciously, he put me on a diet and is giving me some kind of shots. I weighed 195 pounds (5 ft. 4 in. tall, 46 years old). Am now down to 180. Oh, how I wished I had reduced before this diabetes had developed.

"MRS. M."

The "shots" you are getting are evidently insulin injections. Mrs. M. These make up for the deficiency of insulin which your disordered pancreas is unable to manufacture now. (Insulin has to do with the normal utilization of sugar in the blood and tissues—the normal burning for heat and power, and the reorganization so it can be built up into fat.) With the artificial supply of insulin, a diabetic patient is able to eat a more nourishing diet, and so stands a much greater chance of recovery.

It is not believed that insulin actually cures the disease, but it has been noted that with the more nourishing diet, the pancreas does regenerate to some extent.

The relation of overweight to diabetes is not fully understood. All we know is that on an average, 75 per cent of the diabetes were overweight before the disease manifested itself—that is, in patients over 30. (This isn't true of the younger diabetics, although it has been noticed that many of them are overweight, too.) Joslin is fond of saying that his diabetics average 10 to the ton; that means they average 200 pounds apiece.

There is no difficulty in getting thin after diabetes manifests itself. I remember once, while I was talking to a couple, the woman asked me whether cake was fattening, and I of course told her that all food was fattening if it happened to be over the am 'nt needed. Naturally, the richer the food the higher in calories the more fattening it was. Cake, being usually high in calories, would be classed as a fattening food. The man said "That's funny, Doctor, the thing that will make me thinner than anything else is to eat cakes and other sweets!" The woman looked in amazement, but of course, I understood before he explained. He had diabetes, and overeating of the forbidden foods immediately made his condition worse.

The theories as to the cause of diabetes from overweight are, first, the excess fat deposits in the pancreas cripple its function; second, the unbalanced diet cripples its function; third, it is a combination of these two, plus, perhaps, some damage caused from an infection which has been transported from carious teeth, had tonsils, infected intestines or other spots in the body.

So, our little campaign against overweight is as much a campaign against diabetes as anything else, although there are myriads of other disturbances caused by the unbalanced diet and excess fat, wholly or in part—such as kidney, heart, arterial disease, arthritis, intestinal disturbances, high blood pressure, etc. It is even being discovered that more overweighters than underweighters get cancer.

We have a pamphlet of instructions on how to gain or lose, and a list of books on diabetes written by authorities for the layman. See column rules for obtaining these.

Suggests "Probation Courtship"

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 19 years old and this spring I was graduated from high school. A boy three years my senior has been my constant admirer ever since we were in grammar school together. I love him dearly and have reason to believe that he loves me, but at times he gets a bad case of "wanderlust," I call it.

"Two years ago he met a girl with whom he became infatuated, and gradually his attentions to me ceased. I held up my head and suffered in silence. In about two months he grew tired of her and came back to me. I was only too glad to take him back, so the next few months were happy ones for us.

"Six months ago the same thing happened again, only it was another girl. His affair with her lasted only a short time, then he came back to me. This time, however, I didn't take him back so eagerly. He declares that he loves me and is begging for another chance so that he may prove that he is a man, as he terms it.

"What I am asking you, the next I give him another chance, or shall I try to forget him? I love him, and to do that would be a difficult undertaking, but whatever you advise I shall endeavor to do.

"LITTLE PAL"

As you love him, why not put him on probation, Little Pal? It may be that he has learned through experience that you are the only girl for him, and he will not allow his attentions to again drift. You cannot quite trust him, however, after his slips, so if you tell him that you will go with him conditionally, and possibly not exclusively, until he has fully made up his mind that he wants you and you only, that is giving him a fair chance.

If he is one of those men who must have an occasional affair with other women, no matter how fondly he loves the one, it is for you to decide whether you prefer to suffer the pain of trying to forget him now, or whether you want him enough to put up with occasional lapses.

BLUE EYED NANCY: Aren't you making a mountain out of a molehill, Nancy? If the boy friend says he loves you, why not trust him and pay no attention to what people say about him and this other girl, or what she says? He surely would have married her some time during the past five years if he had really cared for her, and would ask her for dates if he cared so much for her society. Why spoil the happiness you might have by harping on the subject? He doesn't need you to die for him, as you appear willing to do, so just curb your jealousy and he probably will be willing to call it quits.

Change Diet, Remove Facial Veins

By GLADYS GLAD

"Dear Miss Glad: My skin is exceptionally clear and smooth, and free from blemishes. However, a lot of tiny veins are noticeable on my cheeks and nostrils. What can be done to eradicate these veins? Would ice packs do any good?"

MRS. THOMAS.

Ice packs would not in the least improve the unsightly veins on your cheeks and nostrils. A modification in your daily menu will help a great deal in eliminating them. Avoid foods which stimulate the blood supply too much, such as highly seasoned foods. Total abstinence from alcoholic drinks is also essential, as the alcohol stimulates the blood supply and will render the veins more prominent. However, these veins can only be removed by plastic surgery.

"Dear Miss Glad: The new sylph-like Clara Bow has nothing on me! Thanks to the reducing instructions included in your booklet on "The New Figure," I have managed to lose twenty pounds. The only remaining sign of my former tubby stage is a double chin. I presume that special exercises are necessary to remedy this condition. Can you give me any such exercises?"

I am glad to hear of your success with my reducing course. I think you will find the following exercises very effective in eradicating your adamantine double chin.

1. Stand erect, arms at the sides. Bend the head back as far as possible, and exercise the jaws in a chewing motion.

2. Lie on your back on a bed, with your head extended over the edge of the bed. Turn the head as far to the right, and then to the left, as possible.

3. In the same position, drop the head as far backward as you can, and then raise it forward up to the chest.

4. Stand erect, hands at the sides. Make a complete circle with the head, beginning by tilting the head forward as far as possible, then to the left, then back and then to the right.

These exercises should be done every morning and night. Do not do them too strenuously at first, as the muscles of the neck are liable to become strained and sore.

"Dear Miss Glad: I've always been rather proud of the fine appearance of my hands. Two days ago, however, I severely bruised my index finger, and the nail has turned black and become loose. If I lose the nail, will another one supplant it?"

WORRIED.

The perpetual multiplication of the soft cells concentrated at the root of the nail causes it to grow. The nail is constantly pushing forward on its bed, and projects beyond the edge. You need have no fear of your finger's remaining nail-less, providing that the bruise has not injured the germative layer of the nail. If the nail is bruised or torn off, another one will grow in its place.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

PINCH HITTING

The indiscretions of a lino type operator made this column say the other day that Butch Bentley played with the old Nationals baseball team as a pitcher when everyone who can remember the Nationals knows he was a catcher. This column apologizes to Mr. Bentley for the tactless statement that he was a pitcher because everyone knows the old saying that "pitchers are peculiar." Of course that old bromide refers especially to left-handed pitchers, who, according to the traditions of the game are supposed to be slightly odd. This is a natural superstition in a profession that thinks it is good luck for the first man up to strike out and that the teams in any given league will finish the season the same way they stood on July 1.

The column also confesses an error in having the name of Patsy McNelis wrong in the original account of the Nationals and takes this occasion to remark that Fred Fisher, the well-known diagnostician on rib roasts and hamburger, was also a stellar member of the original Nationals back in the days when.

The fad of "motorboat golf," which is the application given to the game of miniature golf by the vaudeville performers, continues to grow as is evidenced by the fact that a course is being constructed at Osborn.

Clement Henrie, who designed and built the course operated by the Henri Bros. at Fritz Haller's White House barbecue, is branching out as a miniature golf course architect or engineer since he is installing the course there for Osborn interests.

The Henri boys have changed the hazards on the seventeenth hole at their course, by constructing another tunnel shot for that green, rocks covering the hazard. The shot is a bank and the change makes that green a little harder but par for the hole will not be changed.

The tournaments being conducted this week both for youngsters and adults, are growing with interest. The Henri boys announce that the prizes will be given away to winners in both tournaments about 10 o'clock Saturday night.

"Doc" Lones, one of Xenia Central High's former renowned athletes, was in Xenia briefly Thursday morning, passing through here on a business trip.

"Doc" is now married and lives in Kenton, but his home was originally in Ada where he came here to go to school and help Jerry Katherman establish a local reputation in football and basketball at the Xenia school.

Unfortunately he injured his knee in the first football game of the season, at Washington C. H. and was handicapped the rest of the football season in which the team won the district Class B title. He again performed ably in basketball until an attack of pneumonia laid him low. He still wears a brace on his trick knee but is otherwise a completely healthy animal, weighing about 185 pounds on the hoof.

The release of Phil Corr by the Downtown Country Club and his subsequent signing by the Lang Chevrolet, with the approval of the Softball Commission, was considerably of a surprise in local softball circles.

It seems that Corr was dissatisfied with his role as catcher for the Downtowners because he felt he was not permitted to play frequently enough, and that he sought his release and asked for the opportunity to play with the Langs, who didn't hesitate about signing him up.

The situation is made all the more interesting because the Downtowners are in second place in the National League and Corr shifts allegiance to the league leaders although still a member of the Downtown Country Club which sponsors the team playing under that name. He will probably appear against his old mates next Tuesday when the Langs and Downtowners meet for a game that will have an important bearing on the league race.

Local marksmen are oiling up their pump guns for the annual Grand American Handicap tournament, premier trophy event of the North American continent, which will be staged at Vandalia, north of Dayton, the week of August 18 to 23. Shooters from all parts of the United States, Panama Canal Zone and Canada will probably be on hand. Bruce Leveck, local crack shot, Os Swartz, Harry Spahr, Dick Dennison of Yellow Springs are usually among the contestants.

Miniature golf and softball are running a popularity race, it would seem. Three softball teams are now functioning at Jamestown and the boys at Mt. Tabor are attempting to organize one now.

Two relatives with whom she had lived were taken into custody.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Police today were investigating the death of Miss Dina Schreiner, 67, who succumbed last night to starvation, according to physicians.

She had wasted away to forty-eight pounds and was so weak she was unable to talk when she was taken to Belmont Hospital.

Two relatives with whom she had lived were taken into custody.

COPE FAMILY CONTRIBUTES FATHER AND THREE SONS TO GRAHAMS SOFTBALL TEAM

If your family gets a little fed up on hearing you talk about the local softball races, consider the situation in the Cope family where three members are playing with the Graham Paints and a fourth is a batboy for the team.

Carl "Coxie" Cope, well known Xenian, is thumbing his nose at Father Time and laughing at his own gray hair, while he cavorts in the outfield for the painters while two sons Lawrence and Willie are members of the same team.

The fourth candidate in this family of softball players is none other than Eugene, aged 12, who acts as batboy for the club and will give you an argument any time about the merits of his team.

The situation of father and sons playing on the same team, is unique locally, and probably anywhere else. "Coxie," despite the gray hairs that are now silvering his once-raven locks, appears as agile and nimble on the diamond as any of his kids. He usually plays in the outfield.

Lawrence, who is married, plays shortstop for the Graham team, hits ably and is a demon on the bases, where he runs wild. Willie plays in the outfield with his dad, and is also a capable fielder and a reliable hitter.

Despite their performance on the same team, there is no professional jealousy although Eugene shows no favorites in advising all three to knock the cover off the ball whenever they go to bat.

The situation of father and sons playing on the same team, is unique locally, and probably anywhere else. "Coxie," despite the gray hairs that are now silvering his once-raven locks, appears as agile and nimble on the diamond as any of his kids. He usually plays in the outfield.

Lawrence, who is married, plays shortstop for the Graham team, hits ably and is a demon on the bases, where he runs wild. Willie plays in the outfield with his dad, and is also a capable fielder and a reliable hitter.

Despite their performance on the same team, there is no professional jealousy although Eugene shows no favorites in advising all three to knock the cover off the ball whenever they go to bat.

LANGS AID BATTING AVERAGES IN HEAVY HITTING VICTORY

Dayton Yellow Cabs Humiliated 30 To 5 Here Thursday

The Lang Chevrolet enjoyed a field day at Washington Park Thursday evening at the expense of the Dayton Yellow Cabs, defeating the visitors by the overwhelming score of 30 to 5.

Winder, the visiting pitcher, was no puzzle to the heavy-hitting Langs, who hit high and handsome off his delivery to accumulate runs in every inning but the sixth when they rested after batting completely around in the fifth.

The visitors could do nothing with the offerings of Hurley and Williams, and did not score until the sixth, when they broke the ice with a single run. The Langs hit safely twenty-six times, many of them being extra-base blows.

FAST HORSEFLESH ENTERED IN GREENE COUNTY FAIR EVENTS

A number of horses that will start in the four stake events at the Greene County fair races August 6, 7, 8, gave good accounts of themselves on the grand circuit track at North Randall, in its successful closing week, and at the Sidney and Wapakoneta meetings, earlier this month.

At North Randall, Legality, a bay colt by Lawful, and Hugh M. Napoleon, both from the stables of H. M. Marshall, at Urbana, finished in the money in the three-year-old trot and three-year-old pace, respectively. Legality was third in the three-year-old trot for a purse of $2,000, making his best time in the second heat, which was won in 2:06.

Hugh M. Napoleon finished fifth in the pace but made his best time in the second heat when he finished in third place. The heat was won in 2:08 1-2.

General Walker, also from the Marshall stables, entered here in the 2:18 trot, won the second and last heats of a 2:17 trot after finishing the first heat in tenth place. He made the best time of the race in the second heat, 2:05 1-2.

Grattan McKinney, who will start here in the 2:18 pace, took second money in the Buckeye 2:18 pace at the North Randall track, when the mile was stepped in 2:04 3-4 in the first heat by the winner of first money. He belongs to the Marshall string.

Another Marshall entry for the 2:18 trot, Shenandoah, finished first in the second heat of the trot claiming at North Randall, making the best time of the race 2:09. Parshall horses kept to the front at North Randall, Betty Symbol, who is entered in the 2:18 pace, here, was second in the third heat of the 2:16 pace, finishing the race third. Prince R. Dillon (Parshall) finished third in the last heat of the 2:23 pace, and winning third place in the race. He will start here in the 2:18 pace.

Rose McGreggor won the three-year-old trot at Wapakoneta in straight heats making time of 2:14 1-4 on the last heat. Miss Mary, in the race and finished the second heat in second place.

Ray Henley, the Hagler colt, trained at the local track, won the three-year-old pace in straight heats with time of 2:10 3-4 in the third heat, at his first racing meet appearance. Rosie Princeton finished second in this race and Tramping Napoleon, third. In the 2:20 pace Peter Nutonia won the third heat in 2:10 1-4 while Mt. Loran (Hagler) finished the second heat in third place and was given third place in the race. In the same race Red Azoff finished fifth.

Camilla Hedgewood finished first in the third heat of the 2:16 pace which went four heats making the best time of the race 2:09 1-2. Cora Potemkin won the 2:24 trot taking the two last heats and making 2:11 1-4 in the third. The 2:24 pace, a straight heat race, was won by Czar Model, who made the best time in the first heat 2:10 1-2.

This horse also gave a good account of himself at the Sidney meeting last week finishing the race in second place after winning the third heat.

Ray Henley, the Hagler colt, who won the three-year-old and under pace in straight heats after having performed in the same manner at the Wapakoneta meeting, is expected to give even a better account of himself on the local track where he was trained by Jo Hagler, son of his owner, G. M. Hagler. Rosie Pemberton who will also start in Xenia finished second in the race in straight heats. Cora Potemkin was third in the 2:24 trot and in the 2:19 trot, elimination heats Clara S. finished first taking the third heat and finishing in second place in the second after being eliminated in the first.

Secretary J. Robert Bryson of the Greene County fair board, is expecting a good percentage of the ninety-three horses entered in the four stake events at the fair to start here. There are two stake events for Wednesday, August 6, the opening of the three-day meeting, the 2:18 pace purse $600 and the three year old pace for a $600 purse.

The three-year-old trot will be a stake event of Thursday for $500 purse and Lula Faye dining room cup to winner. The 2:18 trotting stake will be an event of Friday the closing day.

The following are entries in the four stake events at the Greene County fair races August 6, 7, and 8.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET
NEW YORK, July 25.—The general trend of prices was downward today in an extremely dull and featureless market. Stock sales up to the noon hour totaled only 459,000 shares, or at the rate of a million and a quarter shares for the full session. A few weak spots were uncovered in the forenoon, which encouraged the bears to extend their short selling activities to other sections of the market and the general list of industrial and utilities slipped downward.

Evidence of the piling up of unobtainable funds was seen in the marking down of the call rate to 1 per cent in the outside market, for money loaned over the weekend. Business and industrial news was unchanged and commodity markets dull.

National Cash Register Broke to 46 on a moderate turnover. Industrial alcohol was off 2 points at 69 for a new low on the move. War pressure and so-called under 42 for a loss of about 2 points. Speculative evening up for the week-end was reported in the commission houses and selling orders were larger than buying orders from the rank and file of small traders.

by Commissioner Binder. There were three "ayes," Commissioner Harry Fisher voting against the proposal.

E. H. Heathman, manager of the Xenia district for the Dayton Power and Light Co., was the only representative of that utility attending the meeting. He listened to the proceedings and made no comment.

In the discussion which preceded the commission's action in regard to the power and light matter, Mayor Kany declared that the Dayton Power and Light Co., whose franchise expires next December, has never made a lower rate proposal to the city although given opportunity to do so. The city he said, has not heard a word officially from that concern in regard to rates.

Mayor Kany expressed himself strongly in favor of municipal ownership of power and light systems. "The Dayton Power and Light Co., knows that electricity can be bought cheaper than it is now being furnished to us," he said. City Manager Smith interposed that he had been informed that the utility is ready to negotiate with the city at any time on the rate question.

Frederick Anderson, secretary of the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, action of which body precipitated the plan to purchase the distribution system, addressed the commission briefly in stating his position of the business men. He said that the plan was taken up with the idea of obtaining lower rates for the city, in the belief that this could be done through furnishing competition for the light and power contract. The Dayton Power and Light Co. should have competition, it was believed by the association, he said.

Commissioner Binder said that a man who had called upon him within the last day or two said that he could furnish electricity to Xenia for a cent and a half provided the municipality owned its distributing system.

Possible litigation in connection with any effort of the city to purchase the distributing system of the Dayton Power and Light Co. was discussed. City Solicitor W. A. Miller pointed out that there are two methods by which ownership of the system could be obtained. One, through procuring a purchase price acceptable to the city. The other through condemnation proceedings in the courts, and acquiring the property by right of eminent domain.

Attorney J. A. Finney explained to the commission the system of a Toledo bonding company, dealing in first mortgage utility bonds which will make a preliminary investigation and appraisal of the distribution system without cost to the city, unless it can be shown that by following out its program the city can make money.

Dr. F. M. Chambliss, president of the commission brought the matter to the attention of the commission, and presented the motion which had been previously prepared to cover the proposal, by Solicitor Miller. Text of the motion follows:

"Whereas, the Xenia Retail Merchants Association has presented to the City Commission a memorial stating that the merchants of the city are in favor of the purchase of the electric distribution system within the city limits of Xenia, now owned by the Dayton Power and Light Company, and Whereas, the City Commission believes that such purchase is necessary in order that the City of Xenia may be placed in a position of absolute independence in the making of all future power and light contracts;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved by the City Commission of the City of Xenia, State of Ohio:

"That the City Manager is hereby instructed to make the necessary preliminary investigations and to determine the feasibility of such a purchase, and

"That the City Manager is hereby instructed to enter into negotiations with the Dayton Power and Light Company to determine whether or not such purchase can be made from them and upon what terms, and

"That the City Manager report back to the City Commission his findings and the results of such negotiations, together with such plans of financing such a purchase as he may have brought to his attention; a preliminary report is to be made to the Commission at its next regular meeting."

Commissioner Fisher, who voted against the proposal, issued a statement Friday in which he said his vote did not express opposition to the plan but that his position was based on the fact that the commission had promised the Dayton Power and Light Co. a hearing before such action was taken.

His statement said that Mr. Matthews, of the Dayton Company, was informed at an informal meeting in June, that no action would be taken by the commission until his return from a trip to California late this month. At that time it was agreed that he should appear at an open meeting here and explain the rate system of the utility he represents, pointing out the methods of determining rates, and be given an opportunity to explain the attitude of the company before the commission should act on the proposal to buy the distribution system.

Commissioner Fisher said he believes the proposal adopted by the commission is a business-like way of bringing the matter to a head and that his opposition was only temporary, until such a time as the commission could fulfill its promise of an open hearing to the Dayton Power and Light Co.

ACCUSED OF MURDER

CHICAGO, July 25.—George Lombus is under arrest today charged with the murder of Harry McHugh, 27, who, according to Lombus, had been annoying his sister, Mrs. Josie Cooney.

Police pursued Lombus over roof tops following the shooting and captured him. He confessed to the shooting, according to police.

DR. CULLER WILL CONDUCT SERVICE AT XENIA CHURCH

Dr. A. H. Culler, Springfield, will conduct the regular morning service of worship in the First Lutheran Church, 303 W. Main Street, Sunday at 10:30 a. m. He is one of the few retired Lutheran ministers who is still doing active supply preaching.

Dr. Culler served the local Lutheran congregation in this capacity for two different periods of time, one during the summer months of 1918 and the other during a nine months pastorate in 1923. Although he has served the church for more than fifty-seven years he is one of the most active and optimistic men in his vocation.

While in Xenia during his two brief pastorates he made a host of friends who are always eager to greet him and to pay their respects. This will be the first time that Dr. Culler will have appeared in the pulpit of the First Lutheran Church, here, since his retirement in 1923. He is filling this engagement at the request of the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold, pastor of the local congregation and the church council.

The Rev. Mr. Lebold will again occupy the pulpit on Aug. 3, when the Holy Communion will be administered.

$1025 FROM F. O. B. FLINT, MICH.

Millions will throng Buick show-rooms tomorrow . . . for tomorrow marks the introduction of Buick's four new series of Valve-in-Head Straight Eights . . . and carries this added thrill for scores of thousands who have long aspired to Buick ownership—

One of Buick's four new series of eights, equipped like its brothers with masterly new Valve-in-Head Straight Eight Engines and new Insulated Bodies by Fisher, lists as low as $1025—the lowest price at which any Valve-in-Head Straight Eight has ever been offered!

A Buick Eight for $200 less than WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT . . . BUICK WILL BUILD THEM last year's six! A big, roomy Buick Eight priced so low that everyone who can afford any car, above the very lowest price group, can afford this finer automobile!

Buick, two-to-one leader in fine car sales, cordially invites you to see and drive these four new series of Eights—featuring new Valve-in-Head Straight Eight Engines, new Syncro-Mesh Transmissions*, new Insulated Bodies by Fisher and other memorable improvements. . . . On display Saturday!

*Buick alone, of all cars at or near its price, provides the famous Syncro-Mesh Transmission. This ultra-fine, ultra-luxurious feature assures smooth, silent, non-clash gear-shifting through all gears and at all speeds. It is employed in three of the new Buick series, with Buick's fine standard transmission in the series of lowest price.

THE CALL OF CHRIST

E. Stanley Jones, well known missionary to India, gives us the following concise and interesting interpretations of the various religious creeds and doctrines:
Greece said—"Be moderate, know thyself."
Rome said—"Be strong, order thyself."
Confucianism says—"Be superior, correct thyself."
Buddhism says—"Be disillusioned, annihilate thyself."
Hinduism says—"Be separated, merge thyself."
Mohammedanism says—"Be submissive, bend thyself."
Judaism says—"Be holy, conform thyself."
Modern materialism says—"Be efficient, enjoy thyself."
Modern dilettantism says—"Be broad, cultivate thyself."
Christianity says—"Be Christ-like—give thyself."

TRANSMITTING RELIGION

Professor Norman Richardson says, "If Christianity as a living faith should fail to re-instate itself in the lives of the oncoming generations, it will die and be forgotten. Unless the Bible is taught, knowledge of it and love for it are relegated to oblivion."

"If electrical science should cease to be taught, that part of our civilization would drop out. It would become a lost art. In order to survive, Christianity must be learned by each succeeding generation."

The churches furnish a program of Bible study and provide public services of worship that Christianity may be understood and there may be imparted the right Christian motive. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

DEPENDABLE FUEL SINCE 1915

Elimelech and his wife, Naomi, because of famine, settled in Moab beyond the Jordan; their two sons married women of Moab and all three husbands died during ten years. Better times in Judah caused Naomi to desire to go home and both daughters-in-law started, only one going all the way.

V. 8. "And Naomi said unto her daughters-in-law, go, return each of you to her mother's house; Jehovah deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead and with me." Naomi acknowledged the fact that these two daughters-in-law have done their duty and should be free and live as they chose.

V. 9. "Jehovah grant you that you may find rest, each of you in the house of her husband. Then she kissed them and they lifted up their voices and wept. Three desolate widows, associated in sorrow, attached by bonds and fastened in the grave, pausing in the loneliness of wilderness to weep once more together, then say goodbye forever; what a picture!

Vs. 10, 11. "And they said unto her, nay, but we will return with thee unto thy people. And they lifted up their voice and wept again; and Orpha kissed her mother-in-law; but Ruth clave unto her." The weakness of Orpha is in her failure to follow the light of a better faith and return to her heathen god. Ruth's love held at the parting of the ways; both chose but Ruth made the better choice.

V. 16. "And Ruth said, entreat me not to leave thee, and to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people and thy God shall be my God." Where we shall go is settled when we decide to go with God's people, where we stop is as important as where we go and stopping places should be with the proper associates; life consists largely of personal companionship. The God we choose is the greatest choice of life.

V. 17. "Where thou diest, there I will be buried; Jehovah do so to me and more also, if I ought but death part thee and me." Christian friendship is immortal. Faith in God holds us steady in the hour of death. Here is a great faith that explains the reason for the book of Ruth.

Vs. 18, 19. "And when she saw that she was steadfastly minded to go with her, she left off speaking with her. So the two went till they came to Bethlehem. And it came to pass when they were come to Bethlehem, that all the city was moved about them, and the women said, 'Is this Naomi?' Ruth's pleading silenced Naomi and the two, weary, haggard and showing the marks of disappointment caused the women of the town to gossip, saying 'Is this Naomi?'"

V. 20. "And she said, call me not Naomi, call me Mara; for the Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me." The first name means pleasant, the last name bitter. Naomi had the old conception that suffering is sent on by God; often the suffering of God's children is a means of revelation of God as was true in this case.

V. 21. "So Naomi returned, and Ruth, the Moabitess, her daughter-in-law." Ruth was ready to make the best of her situation and she strove to help her mother-in-law by any service, however menial; she was absolutely honest and devoted to Naomi and her God and her life, because of this, is worth recording.

1. What are some of the hardships of immigrants?
2. Why did Ruth cling to Naomi?
3. What was Ruth's sister's name and why is she forgotten?
4. Why is Ruth so highly esteemed?
5. What American women have arisen from humble circumstances to place of power and wherein is the secret for such promotions?
6. Why is a Hindu, whose color is black better received in America than a Negro?
7. What can we do toward adjusting relations between immigrants and foreigners to our own people?
8. Clericus says, "We are all immigrants or sons of immigrants in this land and such treatment ought to be accorded others as we received or wanted to receive from those that preceded us. We all have the same elements of mankind and those who have been given the Christian gift ought to induct it into all racial relations, thus abating animosities and developing brotherly love."
Lesson Prayer: "We too would cling to thee and be associated with those that worship with Thee, come what may. Help us to accept poverty and persecution rather than deny thee; give us the spirit of brotherly love that will make it easy for those that have been unfortunate to rise and live as Thy children."

BOOK REVIEW

"Keep Up Your Courage," by Ayer, Lothrop, Lee and Shepard Co., contains a number of readable and suggestive quotations, concise, inspiring and well-chosen. "Protestantism in the United States," by Bass, Thomas Y. Crowell Co., deals with the origin and development of denominationalism and the efforts for unity in recent years. This book is of interest to laymen as well as theological students, is comprehensive and interesting in its presentation of the story of Protestantism.

What can you do when you have enough pupils for six departments but have only three rooms which can possibly be used for department assemblies?

This question can be answered best by quoting how different Sunday Schools proceed. One group of churches meets the situation by combining the beginners and primary children in one room, with movable partitions so that there may be the two separate groups in one room. They give the juniors another room. They combine the intermediates, the seniors, young people and adults into one department in the other room, which may be the church auditorium. Another group of churches uses the platform system, having various departments meet at different hours; one church has the beginners, primaries and adults meet before the morning church service and the juniors, intermediates, seniors and young people after the church services.

Another group of churches has the beginners and primary sessions at the same time as the church service. This plan eliminates the hurried dash home but does not provide for adults any educational experience other than the morning service. Having each department organized requires more leadership, but good leader-

AN EXAMPLE IN SERVICE

Sir Harry Lauder was in Australia in 1914, and his son, just out of Cambridge University, was visiting him. One day, there was a cablegram for Lieutenant Lauder (who later was promoted to a captain) which read: "Mobilize, Return." The parting message of his father has been given by Sir Harry in the book, "A Minstrel in France."

"So we sailed away. And when I took John's hand and kissed him goodbye, I saw him for the last time in civilian clothes (he was killed later in France)."

"Well son," I said, "you're going home to be a soldier, a fighting soldier. You will soon be commanding men. Remember that you can never ask a man to do something you would not dare to do yourself!"

"And oh, the bawling look in the eyes of the bonnie laddie as he lifted his chin up to me!"

"I will remember, Dad!" he said.

"I will remember, Dad!" he said.

Miniature Golf Craze Makes Millionaires Of A Couple Of Smart Young Fellows

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, July 25.—America's new major industry is miniature golf. Courses are springing up like magic in cities and towns all over the country. Fully 5,000 of the tricky, midget layouts are in operation from coast to coast and many others are under construction.

Two young men, who claim to have originated the baby golf course idea, are growing wealthy—millionaires at 27. They are both the same age. They are Drake De Lanoy, president, and John N. Ledbetter, vice president and treasurer of the miniature golf courses of America, Inc., with headquarters in New York City. They own the basic patents and control the miniature golf business.

Ledbetter, interviewed today in his busy office chucked away in a corner of a floor in an office building which harbors one of the courses, with its greens and sand traps, mural paintings, artificial shrubbery and water hazards containing gold fish, would not say how wealthy he and his partner have become but he did enthusiastically declare that "business is great!"

"The miniature golf craze has swept the country this summer," he said. "There are 400 courses in New York alone. California leads all states with over 1,000. Florida where they play outdoors winter and summer, has 350. Illinois has at least 200. And so on. If there has been a business depression we certainly haven't felt it."

Night after night, thousands of men, women and children putt and chip around these little courses. They play as late as 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. The courses are little beauty spots, often greatly improving the appearances of towns and communities. It is reported that the popularity of the courses has cut down attendance at the "movies" and that some motion picture interests are contemplating installing miniature golf layouts in theaters that are now dark.

An outdoor Tom Thumb course costs about $3,500 and an indoor miniature course from $3,750 to $4,500, according to Ledbetter. An eighteen hole, standard course requires an area of from 2,500 to 3,000 square feet.

So popular has the fad become that Ledbetter and De Lanoy have started building "a back yard course." It costs about $250 and can be installed in the individual's back yard. Every true golfer's backyard is a potential golf course, it was pointed out.

Ledbetter is buying putt the club generally used on the courses, in lots of thousands. The price of cottonseed hulls, used in making greens, has jumped 300 per cent. He is having difficulty buying cheap golf balls.

Both Ledbetter and De Lanoy were real estate men and amateur golfers four years ago. They used to do a lot of putting on the car pet in their own home, like so many other golfers. The "big idea" of a baby golf course came to them. They built one but couldn't make it go. But they "hung on." A year and one half ago, according to Ledbetter, they began "doing things" and today they are to use the vernacular, "sitting pretty."

The Theater

King Vidor, the director who made the all-Negro movie "Hallelujah" and who was warmly praised by the colored race, is under fire this week in an editorial in the Pittsburgh Courier, leading race weekly.

The Courier editorial is based on a revelation by Eva Jessye, musical director of what the Courier calls "that masterpiece of burlesque, travesty, lechery and Negro gutter life," to the effect that the all-Negro cast of the picture was considerably underpaid.

While the rest of the cast remained silent, Miss Jessye points out that she was paid but $100 a week for her very exacting work.

features the Negro actor Clarence Brooks, but allows ample opportunity to display the talents of the other principals, including the beautiful Althea Anderson, the accomplished Evelyn Preer, Irene Wilson, Roberta Hyson, Dora Dean Johnson, Edward Thompson, Spencer Williams, Webb King and E. C. Dyer.

And from the same source of information comes the news that Lew Leslie is gathering a chorus for the 1930 edition of his Broadway musical organization known as the "Blackbirds." When Lew called for girls 250 responded but ads in the Courier indicate plenty of jobs are being opened up for colored stage people.

Mr. Ralph Heaton has returned from Wilmington where he was engaged for a month in doing special work.

Mr. W. E. Cox, of the Hooven and Allison Co., is on a three week's western trip in the interest of the company.

The residence of R. D. Adair on N. Galloway St., is being beautified by the addition of a large veranda extending across the front of the house.

The following Greene Countyans will attend the State Republican Convention at Columbus this week: H. E. Schmidt, M. A. Broadstone, C. E. Arbogast, Lincoln Penderburg, Karli Bull and J. W. Wolford.

and she claims a white person doing the same work would have been paid three or four times that amount. She claims the salaries paid principals were unbelievably small.

According to Miss Jessye the representatives of the company in New York were going to pay the cast the same salaries paid white players until Vidor wired them to wait until he arrived. Upon arrival he flattered the Negroes by telling them it was a great opportunity for them to make good for the race, a real opportunity to break into the film industry, as inexperienced film actors, they could not command the same salaries paid to whites.

She further complains that when the company was on location in the South, the lungeous given the colored players were not as rich as those made up for the white members of the company. The Courier points out that Vidor's Texas birthplace is responsible for his attitude. The editorial says: "There was nothing at all about his picture that revealed the Negro soul as it is. He merely emphasized certain aspects of Negro life that he knew would click with the white patrons, as shown by the way white critics raved about the picture."

Considerable space in the same issue of the Courier however, is given to the new all-colored talkie, "Georgia Rose," which has just been pre-viewed.

The picture deals with the exodus of Southern Negroes to the North and is said to be devoid of racial propaganda. The picture

DAD'S GIRL

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

CHAPTER 59

Silence again. This girl was certainly not the Clara Dee who had dropped out of their lives a year ago—the same, yet not the same.

"Say, who's the old woman who wasn't going to let us in when we came up?" Bee finally asked.

"Mrs. Flynn" asked Clara Dee. She laughed merrily. "Oh! Mother Flynn was probably so dashed with your audacity that she feared for your evil influence over me."

"What has she to say about you, and who is she?" asked Esther.

"Me landlady", and one of the dearest women who ever lived, I finally persuaded her that I needed her wise counsel more than any of her other two dozen boarders, so she sold out her lodging house and came here to manage and chaperon me."

"What does a woman like that know about managing your affairs?" Bee wanted to know.

"A very great deal," answered Clara Dee. "If she could advise me and help me so kindly when I was hopeless and homeless and hungry, she can help and advise me now and I can give her the comfortable and interesting old age which she well deserves."

"Aren't you going to do anything but charity stunts?" was Janet's disapproving inquiry.

"This is not charity," Clara Dee flashed resentfully. "Mother Flynn's services and companionship are priceless—Mother Flynn, she called it over board; and instantly, her ample figure appeared in the doorway.

"Mother Flynn, I want you to meet my school chums," she waved gayly at each of them as she repeated their names and Mrs. Flynn beamed upon them all. "Shoo and I'm glad to be known to all."

"Why weren't you going to let us see Dee?" Bee asked, sociably.

Mrs. Flynn smiled broadly. "Well, I was thinkin' mebbe she was after bein' too tired. She jest come in from a long jaunt."

"Or you feared we might spilt her to some evil tea party or wicked game of golf," taunted Bee humorously.

"No indeed, you might take me girl to the wickedest place on earth, but 'twouldn't be touchin' her none. The yain't no evil what can touch a foine soul," she declared proudly.

"Now Mother Flynn, you do love to flatter me. You will frighten the girls away."

"Humph, I guess if that's after bein' the case, they'd best be goin'," she replied candidly. "But like as not they only pretend to be wicked, anyways," she observed generously.

"You are right!" said Clara Dee. "And I am going to depend upon every one of you girls to help me with my new plans."

"What are they?" chorused the three.

"I am going to found a business training college for ambitious girls who haven't enough money to pay tuition in any other institution. If I could have had the advantage of such a school, I could have been spared a lot of grief and despair, and I hope to be able to prevent many discouraged girls who come to this great city with rose dreams and no practical experience; from resigning to an easier way."

"But the other business schools will object to that, because you will have every girl in the whole country fighting for free tuition in your school," objected Bee.

"No more than the hospital clinics which are supported by charity, have deprived the paying hospitals of their business. Many who would otherwise neglect their ills, are cared for at the free clinics; and the result is more health and happiness I shall be able to train girls who would otherwise never attend any school; and the result will be, more independent and happy girls. I shall investigate the circumstances of each applicant and when she has completed her training and obtained a position, I shall encourage her to pay some small fee, so that any who are too proud to accept charity—and very few

A Thing of Beauty Endures Forever

The cabinets of the new General Motors Radio are among the most distinctive examples of attractive design and fine craftsmanship found in radio cabinet work today. You can invest in one of these period cabinets with the prospect of years of ownership ahead—for if, at some future time, another radio chassis or speaker is developed, it will be so designed as to permit installation in the cabinet you buy today.

Prices without tubes—radio models $136 to $172—radio-phonograph models $198 and $270. Liberal GMAC terms.

ESCAPES SECOND MURDER TRIAL

Just paroled from Great Meadows prison, Comstock, N. Y., after serving 15 years of a "20 years to life" sentence for the murder of Detective Sergeant Charles Gradwell of Elmira, N. Y., faces trial, for burglary and larceny, because of the authorities' inability to secure legal proof to go through with the first degree murder charge of killing Chief John J. Finnell of the Elmira police department, for which he was arrested as he stepped out of prison. Westervelt, left, above, accompanied by Deputy Ralph J. Snyder, always had admitted the slaying of Gradwell but insists the chief was killed by his pal, Jack Penny, who escaped. Westervelt broke his leg in an attempted escape and still uses crutches.

EAST END NEWS

Mrs. W. O. Rickman, E. Market St., entertained a group of children Tuesday afternoon for the pleasure of her niece, Sylvia Patricia Scott, Canton, O. Games were played during the afternoon and a short program was given by the children, each one singing a song or giving a reading. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and candy were served the children at tables on the lawn in front of the Rickman home.

The following children were present at the party: Ethel Jane Rickman, Genevieve Scott, Jane Meredith, Patricia Valentine, Joanna Scott, Martha Hardeon, Harriett Elizabeth Hardeon and Harold Dane.

Clara Dee sighed with relief. Well—she was happy, and so glad that Madge's romance had found a happy ending. She deserved a good home and husband—and babies—and would make a splendid wife and mother. At least, her strange adventure had brought to this great city with rose dreams and no practical experience; from resigning to an easier way."

"And what about Clara Dee," a still, small voice insisted. Sometimes, it seemed to her that she would never be a happy bride. Every day left her more undecided about Don, than on that night when she had become his fiancée. She received his letters and wrote to him regularly. He became more anxious, more determined to see her. The fact was, she had become so absorbed in her work she cared for nothing else just now. Although her absence from Don had not lessened her fondness for him, she could not decide that what she felt was love. Perhaps, if she could see him again—Sometimes she wished he were with her to advise her with her problems, wanted him near—often, she wondered if that summer romance had been real, and wore Don's ring for re-

A SIMPLE STEP TOWARDS HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a Daily Essential and Millions Know Its Effectiveness in Relief of Constipation

Perhaps the one simple thing you are not doing to guarantee permanent health is having sufficient roughage in your food. Absence of this roughage is the direct cause of constipation which results in so many other ills—headaches, listlessness, general depression, indigestion and, sometimes, serious disease.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is roughage. It is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or the purchase price will be refunded. Two tablespoons daily (in serious cases, with each meal) is the proper amount.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also helps you to health in other ways. It is rich in iron, practically all of which goes into the blood, bringing
